Word From Arizona
Successful Miss Hollins
Mr. Wells' Chimpanzee
Shot in Prison

By Arthur Brisbane

MRS. GRACE H. LOGAN, of Phoenix, says Arizona women earnestly favor abolishing capital punishment.

"A woman, Eva Dougan, was hanged there recently," says Mrs. Logan, "and we now have two young boys facing the gallows. When our committee was in session today all agreed to see if you would not touch upon this subject in your writings for our Arizona papers."

Punishment inflicted by government on criminals reflects the civilization of the period.

After the French Revolution, when torture of witnesses was forbidden, judges were aghast, and said:

"We can't get the facts if we are not allowed to torture witnesses."

That applied to witnesses not accused of any crime.

If Arizona decides to stop punishing one killing with another killing, that will be due to the influence of women.

A million women, having with the desire to be "independent," although nobody is independent, will be interested in Miss Marion Hollins. Years ago she was champion female golfer. Now she takes her place in big business, as an able "oil woman." She made up her mind that if men could do it, she could, went into oil financing, and a recent sale netted her $2,500,000.

Did you read H. G. Wells' interesting statement about the higher apes? They can "think ahead" a little. No other animal except man, not even monkeys with tails, can do it.

Without being taught, a chimpanzee will take one stick, insert it in the hollow of another stick, and, with the added length, draw a banana into his cage.

Since the beginning of time, no other animal but man could think as much as that.

Consider what man does now, weighing the stars, measuring the electrons inside of an atom. And only twelve thousand years ago he was using sharp flints for weapons. Not far ahead, mentally, of the chimpanzee. What will he do 10,000,000 years hence?

In the Ohio penitentiary, where nearly 400 convicts were recently burned alive, two long-term prisoners ended their imprisonment suddenly yesterday morning. They were asleep with other convicts in the stockade, when a machine gunner on the roof discharged his machine gun, accidentally, and killed them. Albert Freeman and Frank Ross are their names.

Such accidents are bad for prison discipline.

The prosecutor who sent to the electric chair Ruth Snyder and Gray, who helped murder her husband, has died. What report would he send from his present abode concerning the couple executed by his order?

Would his report that they had been forgiven up there, or would he be allowed to look down and see them, writhing in torment, where "their worm dieth not," condemned to horrible agony, through infinite millions and billions of years?

Display of naval power on water and in air continues in New York.

The most interesting display came when some senators saw 132 planes rise from the decks of three ships 15 seconds apart, and when they saw the same planes, after flying out to make theoretical attacks, return to land safely on the ships, 30 seconds apart, without a mishap.

What would such a carrier ship, with its cargo of bomb-poison gas and machine gun carrying planes, do to a fleet of surface ships?

It would do to it exactly what 132 hawks would do to a group of field mice.

She lives apart and few will know, when her career ends.

But Cancalaise, Jersey cow, of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., is a champion female worthy of honor.

Last year she produced 1,072.7 pounds of butter fat, and 18,822 pounds of milk.

Such cows could help to solve the farm problem. They are, in their way, as remarkable as machinery in mass production factories.

GRAND JURY GETS GARRETT CASE; SIX POLICE CAPTAINS TO RETIRE

New Prison Drive Gains Support

LEGISLATORS APPROVE OF ABOLITION

Senator Joseph J. Mulhern, Father of Garrett Expose, Holds Expense Justifiable

That the resolve introduced into the Legislature calling for a commission to wipe out the menace to the lives of nearly 1000 inmates in Charlestown State Prison is gaining widespread support is indicated today by the reactions of Legislative leaders.

The resolve was filed by Rep. Joseph Finnegan, following the expose of conditions at the prison by the Boston Evening American.

It solves some of the greatest problems that confront those who are enlisted in the move to clean out the crumbling bastile for although the State is now working on a model prison in Norfolk, there remain these facts:

That if $17,000 were appropriated by the Legislature under the present building program, only 25 prisoners could be transferred from Charlestown.

That if $200,000 were appropriated, probably 150 more men could be removed to Norfolk.

But there would still remain in Charlestown the balance of over 800 prisoners, and this figure might be lessened by discharges, but it would be augmented by court commitments.

SUPPORT GROWS

Finnegan's resolve calls for the appointment of a commission that could and would devise speedy methods for the removal of the Charlestown prisoners to Norfolk, and that would, with approval, EXPEND SUCH SUMS AS ARE NECESSARY FOR THE PURPOSE OF THIS RESOLVE.

The resolve is now in the hands of the committee on rules, which is headed by Leverett Saltonstall, speaker of the House.

As the speaker has repeatedly expressed himself in favor of all movements to improve State institutions, his sentiment toward

Foil Bank Break in Rockland

Rockland, May 9—Chief George Popp and Patrolmen Robert Drake and John Murphy of the Rockland police frustrated a break in the Rockland Trust Co. in Union st. early today.

While Patrolman Drake was patrolling his beat his attention was attracted to a noise in back of Ramsay's store. He went to the rear of the building with a drawn revolved and fired several shots in the air, attracting Chief Popp and Patrolman Murphy. Three youths fled from behind the building and made a getaway.

TRAINS CRASH IN HEAVY FOG

North Chelmsford, May 9—Boston & Maine railroad locomotives passwiped at Stony Brook crossover early today in thick fog and the fireman of one engine was severely injured.

The fireman, Guy H. Stearns of Claremont, N. H., was taken to Lowell Carnegian Hospital.

Both locomotives and two cars were derailed and the cars overturned, blocking both the main line and the Ayer Junction branch.

Stearns was fireman on the engine of a southbound milk train.

The milk train locomotive sideswiped the engine of a northbound freight which was taking the crossover at the junction.

According to officials, signals were set against the milk train, but Engineer McKay did not see them in the fog.

While the tracks were being cleared, southbound traffic over the Southern Division was routed from Nashua to Ayer and Boston. Northbound traffic was routed over the Western Division, the Manchester and Lawrence branch.

Between Nashua and Lowell motor coach service was established.

YALE STUDENTS FIGHT POLICE; 15 ARRESTED

Many Are Injured in Riot of Upper Classmen After the Freshies' Celebration

New Haven, Conn., May 9 (AP)—Clashes between police and Yale students growing out of the annual Yale freshmen celebration early today resulted in 15 arrests and injuries to a score of students and policemen.

Mild and scattered disturbances marked the beginning of the rebellion last night. Upper classmen, however, converted what had started out to be a purely freshman affair into several excited outbreaks in which the police and the sophomores united in their efforts to quell the disturbances.

FELLED BY CLUBS

Injured students, felled by nightsticks, were taken to hospitals for collar bruises and scalp wounds. Police headquarters for detained students, dazed, confused and soiled, went to headquarters for treatment for minor injuries and returned to the scenes of disturbance.

All those arrested, 14 of them students and the 15th a local salesman, had lacerations and bruises.

All of the students seized are upper-classmen charged with general breach of the peace. They were released in $200 each, furnished by Dean Clarence W. Mendell of Yale. They are:

Hiram Hart, '32, Tampa, Fla.; Raymond H. High, 31, Chicago; Rudolph B. Van Brunt, 32, South Hampton, N. Y.; Ward Cheney Thorpe, 31, Rye, N. Y.; Joan L. Griswold, '32, Morristown, N. J.; Robert F. Wilson, 30, Cincinnati; Edward Payson Bullard, 3d, Bridgeport; William Boardman Mosle, '30, New York City; John McEwan, 3d, '30, Winnetka, Ill.; Roland Francis Switzer, '30, St. Louis; Robert De Groat, art school, New York city; Roy C. Robison, 32, New York city; Nicholas Leon Doutsche, '30, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Bernard Schenfeld, art school, New York city.

Mosle and McEwen, Dean Mendell said, had been sent by him to quell the disturbance and were mistaken by police as rioters.

Members of the student council led by Waldo W. "Firpo" Green, captain of the 1929 football team, were instrumental in bringing the disturbance to an end.

ERECT BARRICADE.

The most serious clash was on High st., near Chapel st., where 200 students erected a wooden barrier four feet high. Taunts by the students resulted in a charge by police. Students fell unconscious as night sticks fell on their heads and were taken away in taxicabs.

Just before the police charge the wooden barrier was set on fire by students, but the flames were quickly extinguished.

This remarkable picture was taken from a Gates flying service airplane, showing the burning motor oil tanker Churchia and the flaming plant of the Gulf Refining Company at Bayonne, N. J. Three piers and several buildings were destroyed and more than 200 persons injured, seven seriously burned. The fire was started by an oil blast on the tanker. The loss is estimated at $3,000,000. $3,000,000 in Smoke

Bayonne, N. J., May 9 (AP)—Three piers and part of the Gulf Refining Company plant were in ruins today with an estimated loss of $3,000,000 after a fire, fed by 6,000,000 gallons of crude oil and gasoline, had raged for five hours.

The fire, started by an explosion on the Churchia, a small motor tanker, destroyed a warehouse, a powerhouse, a pumping station and several locker buildings and stockhouses besides the piers. The flames were fed from 15 oil storage tanks which exploded one after another.

Seven men, three of them members of the crew of the tanker, were seriously injured and about 200 others were treated for minor hurts.

A general reorganization of the Long Island Hospital staff began today under Henry A. Riggins, newly appointed superintendent, succeeding John J. Ryan, who was removed after the Finance Commission disclosed alleged illegal dispensing of liquor at the city institution.

Institutions Commissioner James E. Maguire, who appointed Riggins, as well as a number of new doctors, declared that he has been informed by the Finance Commission that the liquor revelations only "scratched the surface" and that other disclosures of an even more sensational nature may be expected.

HULTMAN DUE TO SUSPEND 2 NAMED IN EXPOSE

Wilson May Testify; Big Police Shakeup to Come Soon; Patterson Is Out

The Suffolk county grand jury receives the "Garrett case" today.

With reorganization of the Boston police department begun by removal of Herbert A. Wilson, as commissioner, and retirement of Capt. George W. Patterson, the jury convened today to hear evidence concerning the alleged fraudulent pension awarded to Oliver B. Garrett.

As it met, the new commissioner, Eugene C. Hultman, was planning further "rehabilitating" of the department in the light of the Garrett expose, with the retirement of six other captains, transfer of a seventh and suspension of at least two men probable.

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley was to appear before the grand jury himself to conduct the presentation of the pension phase of the case which may result in indictment of one or more persons for fraud and conspiracy.

WILSON MAY TESTIFY

His assistant, Frederick T. Doyle, was to assist him and six or seven witnesses were expected to testify before the jury today, to be followed on Monday by others.

Whether, or when, ex-Commissioner Wilson would be called was not divulged.

Scheduled to appear today were Deputy Superintendent James A. McDevitt, who as captain of station 3 opposed the Garrett pension; Capt. Joseph Hickman, chief clerk at headquarters; William J. Keenan, secretary of the Civil Service Commission; Dr. Harry Klingman of East Bridgewater, who attended Garrett following one of his accidents; Dr. Richard M. Chute of Massachusetts General Hospital, where Garrett was treated for the accident on which he based his pension claim, and Edmund L. Dolan, city treasurer.

The following will probably not be called until Monday: Dr. John A. Foley, Dr. Arthur W. Fairbanks and Dr. Cochrane of the police retirement board; Dr. Frederick H. Bailey of the board of health; Dr. Mark M. Burke; Dr. Beulah, Dr. Herbert H. Udelson and Dr. John Sears McCormack.

No evidence concerning the alleged grafting activities of Garrett, Sergt. Arthur Timmins, Special Officer Arthur Tiernan and others will be placed before the jury, it is believed, until John F. Sullivan, their chief accuser, is able to appear.

HULTMAN GOES RAIDING

The former Hotel Ritz proprietor who testified at the attorney-general's investigation that he paid thousands of dollars to police for protection of liquor traffic, is still a voluntary patient at the Danvers State hospital.

Until his nervous condition warrants his physician allowing his appearance as a witness, that phase of the case concerning the protection of vice and liquor rests with no prospect to the jury, it is believed. Dist. Atty. Foley has been so advised by Damon H. Hall, who was Warner's special prosecutor for the Garrett inquiry.

Commissioner Hultman, who last night personally conducted with Supt. Michael E. Crowley a raiding tour of speakeasies with visits to night clubs and suspected vice resorts included, was early on the job at headquarters today.

Changes which he has in mind as a result of the Garrett case are believed to wait only upon the advice of Atty.-Gen. Warner regarding the best policy to pursue. This advice he asked for yesterday.

Capt. Patterson, vice squad leader and Garrett's superior while [illegible] was a raider, was retired on pension at roll call this morning.

The fact that he was granted a pension in the light of Atty-Gen. Warner's report, which found him "grossly negligent" and incompetent, called forth a storm of protest in many quarters.

He denied that his application for retirement, which Commissioner Hultman granted without realizing he was doing so, was a result of the Attorney-General's findings, but in the light of those findings, the new police head would have had no alternative, apparently, except to file charges against him.

Had such charges been filed, Capt. Patterson would not have been in the "good standing" legally required for pension, it was pointed out.

SIX CAPTAINS TO GO

Now, by quick action and an admitted misunderstanding, he has assured himself of an income of $2000 for the rest of his life, and the city cannot do other than pay that income, Corporation Counsel Silverman having ruled that Mayor Curley's approval of his application was not necessary.

In well-informed police circles it is said that the following captains will shortly be retired, not necessarily as a direct result of the Garrett case, but in the general rehabilitation resulting from it:

Arthur B. McConnell, Hanover st.; Perley S. Skillings, Milk st.; Herbert W. Goodwin, Lagrange st.; Richard Fitzgerald, Dudley st.; James F. Smith, West Roxbury; John F. Driscoll, Mattapan.

Capt. John J. Mullen, E. Dedham st., is expected to be transferred from the South End division.

Several of the division leaders are said to have contemplated retirement before the Garrett proceedings.

Commissioner Hultman is expected to suspend Sergt. Timothy Tiernan, Special Officer Tiernan, the only two members of the force named by a witness as having received graft.

There is a shakeup due at headquarters. If Capt. James J. Wilkins does not elect to retire, he is due to be placed in a better and more important post than he was given by Commissioner Wilson when he was transferred from the Mattapan station following a dispute which his men had with Garrett.

JOB FOR McDEVITT.

Superintendent Crowley, it is believed, will remain in his post at least until fall, when he may retire. Commissioner Hultman thinks highly of his capabilities.

Some time probably will elapse before there is a general shakeup of lieutenants, sergeants and patrolmen, such transfers probably awaiting changes in the division commands.

Deputy Superintendent James S. McDevitt appears destined for the superintendency when Crowley steps out. He has long been one of the most popular officers in the department and his division, when he commanded the Joy st. station, was commonly said to have been the cleanest in the city.

The joint rules committee of the Legislature was to meet today in another executive session to consider the Garrett report with reference to possible legislation and also to decide whether Wilson shall be granted a hearing in accordance with his request.

It is believed a majority of the committee feels that Wilson has had his day in court and that anything he might now say would not effect their consideration of Warner's findings. There was absolutely no chance, it was said, that the committee would grant his request to be allowed to summons and question witnesses.

COMMISSIONER ON RAIDS

An indication of the tactics of the new commissioner was given last night when, with Superintendent Crowley, he personally raided a number of speakeasies and disorderly houses in several parts of the city. These included a number of dives which allegedly operated under police protection.

The raids were easily the most spectacular police action taken since the advent of prohibition and caused a scare throughout the so-called underworld.

Commissioner Hultman and Supt. Crowley were unescorted except for the police chauffeur, Patrolman Joseph Leahy. Supt. Crowley was picked up at his home in Dorchester and after a brief stop at police headquarters the raiding tour began.

The first stop was on Carver st. The police car pulled up and a man was entering the door. Supt. Crowley leaped out of the machine and crashed through the door behind the man. Commr. Hultman was right at his heels.

CONTINUE TOUR

They said that about 15 men were in the building and charged that liquor had been destroyed while they were entering. They ordered the 15 men out and then continued on to a house on Common st. Here they found nine men gathered around, but no liquor was in evidence.

One man, under the influence of liquor, was arrested by the police heads and turned over to the patrolman on the route. He was later booked at the La Grange st. station.

The next stop was at a place on Shawmut ave. Again the officials claimed that the liquor had been dumped but they ordered several men out of the building. Several more were ordered out of another alleged club in Tremont st., just south of Broadway.

The commissioner and superintendent then stopped on Columbus ave., West Canton st., and Columbus ave., all suspected houses of ill fame. They found that all had been closed and were informed by Sergt. John Dunleavy of the West Dedham st. station that they had been under surveillance of plain clothes men for two weeks.

Capt. Patterson will be formally retired at police roll-call today despite the fact that Commr. Hultman, in signing the pension application, thought that the mayor's signature was necessary to make the document official.

Hultman at the outset of his career as head of the police department stands in the peculiar position of having granted the pension request without his full approval, and under the law nothing can be done about it.

Both Mayor Curley and the commissioner believe that the former's signature was a requisite, but Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman, who advises both the city and the police department, has declared that all legal requirements have been satisfied.

Patterson therefore will become today an officer retired in "good standing" within a few days of the completion of the Garrett investigation, in which he was submitted to a severe grilling at the hands of Atty. Damon E. Hall, and of the submission of the Warner report, in which Patterson was charged with gross negligence and incompetency.

3 MORE STATES JOIN BONE DRY LIST IN POLL

North Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee Go Over 50 Per Cent for Enforcement

North Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee have joined Kansas and Arkansas in voting over 50 per cent for strict enforcement of the prohibition law, according to the Literary Digest's main poll, the total vote of which has passed the 4,000,000 mark.

Only three states, Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island, have a majority vote for repeal.

Of the 4,150,617 votes in the eighth and current report of the major poll by the magazine, 1,245,589, or 30.01 per cent vote for enforcement; 1,248,849, or 29.65 per cent register for modification, and 1,669,579, or 40.23 per cent are for repeal.

KANSAS DRYEST

While there has been no marked change in the ratios of the three groups, it is noted that there is a general trend in the later reports toward a dryer vote.

For the first time since the poll started the vote for enforcement passes that for modification.

Kansas continues to lead as the dryest state in the poll and Connecticut also continues to head the wet column.

OTHER STATES' VOTE

Although there is no clear majority, Louisiana and New York each have a vote of over 49 per cent for repeal.

Over 40 per cent of the vote in Alabama, Colorado, Iowa, Mississippi, Nebraska, South Carolina and Texas is for enforcement, while in Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Wyoming and the District of Columbia over 40 per cent of the ballots are registered for repeal.

BEAT SCORED BY AMERICAN

Half an hour ahead of other evening papers in Newspaper Row and other downtown points, newsboys selling the Hearst paper, the American yesterday were shouting the news that Capt. George Patterson, a prominent figure in the Garrett investigation, had applied for a pension.

In conformity with its aim to give its readers the big news first the Evening American rushed this news to the presses and gave the city the story far in advance of its competitors.

While the Evening American newsboys were shouting, "Capt. Patterson Asks for Pension," newsboys handling the other Boston papers were silent. With good reason. Their papers did not have the story!

Incidentally Station WHDH, broadcasting from the studio in the Boston Evening American, was the first to place the story that Patterson's retirement was in effect—that Mayor Curley's signature was not necessary.

NURSE BATTLES 2 ASSAILANTS IN WORCESTER

Molested for Second Time in a Year, Catherine Ahasey Fights Off Men in Auto

Worcester, May 9—For the second time in a year Miss Catherine Ahasey, 30, of King st., was assailed today in Woodland st., near her home, when two men tried to force her into an auto.

Miss Ahasey, a nurse, was returning from the home of a patient when the sedan drew up to the curb.

Without a word, she told police, the two men grabbed her, and she fought them. In the tussle her hand went through a window of the car and glass cut her head and hands.

Escaping the clutches of the men, she ran to Woodland st. fire station calling for help, but her assailants escaped before firemen could respond.

A year ago Miss Ahasey was accosted by a man near the same spot and when she repulsed him he inflicted a deep wound in her left arm.

She could give no clue to the men in either assault.

Garages and hideouts of cars were being searched today by police for a sedan with a broken window.

HARVARD BOYS IN RIOT AGAIN

Reports that a celebration would be held on the streets of Cambridge by Harvard students last night resulted in the gathering of more than 300 students in front of the Lampoon Building on Plympton and Mt. Auburn sts. shortly after 11 o'clock, with shouting and hilarity that but faintly echoed the disturbance in the same locality on Wednesday night.

Bottles were thrown freely and parked cars were pushed into the street as the students tried in vain to draw a special detail of police to the scene. Two or three officers patrolling their beats in the neighborhood did not disturb the spring-riotism attempt.

Shortly before midnight a group of special Harvard police under Charles A. Apted broke up the assembly and sent the youths to their respective dormitories on threatening to report them to the dean.

Carl Parker, 20, of 23 Linnaean st., Cambridge, a Harvard student, was sentenced to five days in the House of Correction.

Parker was found guilty yesterday in 3d District Court, East Cambridge, of disturbing the peace at Harvard sq., Wednesday night. Parker appealed and was held in $50 surety for appearance before the Superior Court.

Scheme for Making Gold Branded as Imaginary

Paris, May 9—Centuries ago alchemists working in the seclusion of secret laboratories struggled to transpose base metals into gold. The problem has been paramount in the minds of scientists ever since.

Mme. Maricenau

Recently the sober Academy of Sciences was thrown into an uproar when a learned paper by Mme. Maricenau, a Rumanian scientist, was read, which discussed a method which Mme. Maricenau was convinced would transmute baser metals into gold.

Dignified scientists listened to the reading of the learned paper as long as possible. Finally M. Fabry could contain himself no longer, leaped to his feet and accused Mme. Maricenau of employing too much imagination.

26 Cops Shifted in Lowell Shakeup

Lowell, May 9—The Lowell police department experienced a severe shakeup last night with the transfer of 26 patrolmen, including three members of the liquor squad on the job only five weeks.

Officers Thomas H. McSweeney and Bernard J. Gilbo were put back on traffic posts with Patrolman Joseph A. Clark going back in uniform to a night beat. All three men were placed on the liquor squad five weeks ago.

Four officers were picked to replace the three sent back to harness. They are Traffic Officer James H. Morrison, Michael J. O'Neil, James F. McNally and Horace Finn.

GLAD TO HAVE REST, SAYS PATTERSON

37 Years Long Time in Harness; Has Plenty of Memories of Work

Capt. George W. Patterson packed up the treasured mementoes of 37 years' service as a police officer yesterday, said goodbye to a few close friends and walked down the broad stairs of police headquarters a private citizen.

There was a catch in his voice and the trace of a tear in his eye as he left his desk and started for home at 13 Moultrie st., Dorchester.

His wife met him at the door as he returned from work for the last time and escorted him to his easy chair in the living room.

It was there the reporter found the 66-year-old police veteran. At first he was averse to discussing his retirement on pension, but later did in that ball-fellow-well-met fashion that is peculiarly his.

LONG IN HARNESS

"My retirement has nothing to do with the Garrett investigation, old pal," he said, "I have been thinking of getting out of harness for more than a year now. You know, 37 years is a long time and personally, I think it is long enough for any man to work," he smiled.

A lively collie played about his feet as Patterson considered what he is going to do with all the spare time he will have from now on.

"My plans may be summed up in one word—rest. Very soon my wife and I will leave for a long vacation at our cottage in Maine. After that—well, I haven't looked that far ahead, but you will be safe in gambling that it won't be very strenuous."

The former chief of the police raiders has one problem that is causing him some thought. His retirement pension entitles him to $40 a week.

ECONOMY CAMPAIGN

"I don't know how we are going to get along on that," he offered. "I guess we will have to start a program of rigid economy."

Then the talk reverted to the Garrett investigation.

"I have only the highest respect for Atty-Gen. Warner and Mr. Hall. They afforded me very courtesy during the sessions at the State House," Patterson said.

"But I had nothing to fear from that probe or any other, no matter how rigid and searching the scrutiny. Patterson has always been a clean cop, both in and out of the department, and my associates know it."

His work as chief of the headquarters "liquor squad was interesting and he enjoyed it, but how many aspects it was a thankless job trying to enforce a law to which so many people opposed."

In addition to the fact that he has reached the retirement age of 66, Patterson was anxious to retire because he has been troubled with a throat affliction for several years. He plans to submit to an operation in the very near future.

Of his long career on the police force, Patterson has many unusual assignments. At one time his official title was bunly-gurdy inspector. Here his job was to patrol the streets of the city entering ordinances relative to the quality and quantity of the product offered by itinerant musicians.

HOBO INSPECTOR, TOO

His also examined the monkey shows connected with the bunly-gurdy and if its health was not up to par, or if it was a stranger to soap and water for any appreciable period, Patterson would issue orders that the defect be remedied immediately.

At another time his was "hobo" inspector. Of course, this was when this type of life was considered a profession as well as an art. Many a son of leisure owes his present standing to the good offices of Patterson, who taught him the ethics of the road—cleanliness, honesty and the like. If any resistance was offered to the teaching, the offending gentleman was shown the nearest road leading from Boston and bidden godspeed.

During his hour of duty at headquarters Patterson endeared himself to all the men under him. He was known as a fair boss.

When any of his men were sick on payday he would either take their money to them himself or delegate his chauffeur to do so.

HAS MANY RELICS

On one occasion when Garrett had been out for several days Patterson brought his money to him as he felt that "Garrett might need it to buy his Sunday dinner."

His office at headquarters was a treasure house of relics of raids and similar services. He has a collection of 500 photographs showing narcotic and liquor paraphernalia seized by the liquor squad.

On the wall of his office he had a sign seized in a raid in Chinatown which read, "No Credit." In Chinese, Jewish, Arabic and several other languages.

"COUNTY RINGS" BLAMED FOR KEEPING CONVICTS' LIVES IN PERIL

BLOCK RAZING OF PRISON FIRETRAP

Penal Society Assails Obsolete System Employed by Massachusetts

Political "county rings" are specifically named by the National Society of Penal Information as the cause of Massachusetts' failure to abandon the State prison at Charlestown and speed up the construction of a new one.

This powerful society, whose activities are national in scope, has an advisory committee of prominent social workers and citizens in each state.

The Massachusetts representatives, who endorse the society's findings as to conditions in this State, are Dr. Richard C. Cabot of the Harvard Medical School, Rabbi Harry Levi of Temple Adath Israel, Brookline; Lewis Parkhurst of Winchester, former State Senator; Mrs. James J. Storrow, social leader of Boston and Lincoln, and Prof. Harry E. Barnes.

OLDEST IN COUNTRY

Reporting on Charlestown prison the society's investigators write:

"The most significant feature of this institution is the plant itself. Severe criticisms have been levelled at it. The State Department of Correction, wardens and public-spirited citizens have repeatedly called attention of the State to its shortcomings.

"It is the oldest prison plant in the country. The city has long since grown so close around it that expansion is impossible and both light and air are affected by factory smoke. It has been said that the site is assessed by the Boston assessors at over $1,500,000 and is too valuable for the State to retain for its present use.

"The ancient cells, most of which have only buckets, are rendered habitable only by rigid attention to sanitation and a general understanding of upkeep superior to that of most old prisons. The construction of 123 years ago cannot be adjusted to modern standards.

ASSAIL "RINGS"

"It is probable that the real reason why Massachusetts has not built a new prison is the power of the so-called 'county rings.' Many offenders who in other States would be sent to prison are sent in Massachusetts to the county jails.

"It is impossible to bring these county jails to a high standard and inequality of treatment for similar offenses results.

"UNTIL THE POWER OF THESE ELEMENTS, WHICH DEMAND THE RETENTION OF PRISONERS IN THE COUNTIES IS BROKEN, MASSACHUSETTS WILL FAIL TO MEET ITS PENAL PROBLEM SUCCESSFULLY."

Coolidge Returns to Home of Forefathers for Tercentenary Celebration

A plea for a greater spirit of tolerance was voiced by ex-President Coolidge in his Tercentenary speech at Watertown high school, which was broadcast over a national network. Principles of government which will insure the progress of this country can be learned from the struggles of the early settlers, he said. Governor Allen also spoke, and Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Coolidge were given flowers.

36 COUNTRIES PROTEST U. S. TARIFF BILL

Some of the Nations Have Sent as Many as 35 Notes Assailing Schedule

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN
Universal Service

Washington, May 9—Thirty-six foreign countries have filed protests against the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill with the State Department through their respective embassies and legations, it became known today.

In many instances the protests were couched in such language that it was necessary for the Secretary of State to point out the rather "intemperate" character of the criticism contained in the notes.

SENT TO COMMITTEE

All of these protests have been passed on to the committees in Congress charged with revision of the present tariff laws.

None of the foreign countries have filed less than two protests to the projected rates and some of them, such as Great Britain, France and Italy, have deposited as many as 35.

The government of Persia, through its diplomatic representative here, regards "with consternation" the increased tariff on hand-made rugs and carpets.

The Portugese government wrote a note to Secretary Stimson in which it declared of the tariff on cork:

"The rapacious greed displayed in certain quarters in this (the tariff) question is not, our dealings with American business men in the past have convinced us, a trait of the American people."

FRANCE'S CLAIM

A comparison of the purchases made by Americans of French goods and by French people of American goods revealed that each French citizens buys $5.35 worth of American goods while each American citizen buys only $1.23 of French goods. This was contained in one of the many French complaints against the "absolutely excessive" rates in the tariff bill now under preparation.

In another note [illegible] Acting Secretary William R. Castle, Jr., the French Foreign Office declared that the tariff provisions displayed "a mode of reasoning which clearly exceeds even the most extreme protectionist principle."

Germany is practically the only important European country to accept the tariff bill without undue complaint.

Solons Join in Fight to Save Convicts

the measure is believed favorable.

Probably the most ardent supporter of the resolve besides its sponsor is Senator Joseph J. Mulhern, father of the Garrett inquiry.

LIVES IN BALANCE

"Even a large expenditure, such as is required for putting the Norfolk prison camp in condition to accommodate the Charlestown inmates, would be fully justified," Mulhern declared.

"In fact, in view of the importance of the problem, it is no more than the situation demands to build an entirely new prison. No financial aspect is worth consideration when human lives are in the balance."

Representatives Anthony A. McNulty, Lewis R. Sullivan, Jr., Thomas H. Carr, and many others were quoted as being firmly in favor of the measure.

Carr declared that work is progressing so slowly at the Norfolk prison that "it will be at least three years before it can be used to relieve the congestion already existing at Charlestown, if present plans are followed."

"Even before the Columbus, O., disaster, I was horrified by conditions I found on visiting the Charlestown State prison," he said. "At that time I was formulating plans to bring matters to the attention of the governor."

"When the Columbus penitentiary burned down, with its awful toll of human lives, I set to work on the problems presented by our own penitentiary."

"Rep. Finnegan's resolve is the key to the situation, and in view of the fact that the Boston Evening American is backing the fight for demolition of the Charlestown firetrap, I am enlisting for whole-hearted support both Finnegan and the American."

It was pointed out generally that the present building program at Norfolk is in no way satisfactory.

In addition to Carr's declaration that it would be three years before Norfolk could accommodate the inmates of Charlestown, unless immediate action is taken, other legislators who have studied crime problems in the State, declared that at the end of the three years there would probably be still a large number of convicts in Charlestown.

PLEDGE BACKING

Rep. McNulty noted that the State prison is greatly overcrowded at the present time and that there is no guarantee that the same state of affairs may not exist in three years.

"I am solidly behind the Finnegan resolve," he said. "Anything that means speed in completion of Norfolk and the abolishment of the antiquated fire trap structure in Charlestown is no more than a humanitarian measure that demands every man's support."

Rep. Sullivan suggests putting some of Massachusetts unemployed citizens to work to complete the new prison at Norfolk.

"Such a plan could be adopted easily under the provisions of Finnegan's resolve," he pointed out, "it would stimulate employment at a time when it is greatly needed."

"I am not losing sight of the fact that the lives of prisoners lodged in the freight yards at the Charlestown are daily imperilled by fire hazard, but I would use the employment question as one more argument as to why we will go ahead on this resolve.

"The way the new prison is being built at Norfolk means nothing but more delay—more procrastination. It means that it will be years before we will free the Charlestown prisoners from the dangers of a death by fire or suffocation."

Victor Talks

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, who defeated Senator Charles S. Deneen in the campaign for the Republican Senatorial nomination in Illinois, will tell about her victory in a radio talk over station WABC tonight.

LEAGUE COURT FOE ON AIR

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick tonight will tell the nation by radio the significance of her recent astounding victory in the Illinois primaries.

Member of Congress and campaigner extraordinary, Mrs. McCormick will answer her critics and emphasize the fact that the dominant issue of her campaign was her opposition to the League Court and European entanglements. Her address will be broadcast over the Columbia network.

Since Mrs. McCormick defeated Senator Charles S. Deneen for the nomination for senator by 200,000 majority, she has been the talk of the country.

In that primary battle, a woman for the first time in history won the senatorial nomination of a major party. It was a personal victory in large measure, for Mrs. McCormick stumped the State from one end to the other, and asked no favor because of sex.

She made the League Court an issue, drove that issue home to the voters, and her victory has been regarded as of nation-wide significance.

In her radio address, Mrs. McCormick will give for the first time her own version of her campaign, the importance of her stand against the League Court, and the significance of the huge vote which was polled in her behalf.

Her radio broadcast will begin at 5:15 p. m. Eastern standard time, at 6:15 s. m. Eastern daylight saving time.

Killing of Two Convicts to Go Unpunished

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
Universal Service

Columbus, O., May 9—Ohio's murder average was fattened today. Two more prisoners were added to the death roll of 322 in the overcrowded, ancient penitentiary.

James W. Ross, 40, of Cleveland, who had served five years of a 10-year minimum sentence for burglary, and Albert Freeman, also of Cleveland, serving a like sentence for manslaughter, were shot and instantly killed by a machine gun mounted on the prison wall.

KILLING "ACCIDENTAL"

Their deaths were described by prison officials and military forces that enforce martial law in the prison as "accidental and unfortunate."

A young State trooper was working on the machine gun when it discharged. He "did not know it was loaded," according to the official explanation.

The prisoners who were killed had performed heroic service in the disastrous fire. Freeman had been severely burned while attempting to release others from the locked death cells and he had been discharged from the hospital but a day before he met death.

NO REPRIMAND

The young State trooper responsible for the deaths will not be reprimanded, it was said. The affair was one of those accidents "which just naturally happen."

The deaths followed by six hours another outburst of protest among the prisoners. They had fired their tents in the stockade in a demonstration against what they claim to be "hard-boiled" and excessive punishments imposed upon fellow prisoners by the prison officials.

CHILDREN BURIED

Seven Columbus children killed by their mother because she could no longer provide for them, were buried yesterday afternoon. At about the time of their burial the penitentiary officials opened a letter from the mother to the father, who is an inmate, in which she disclosed her plans to make away with herself and the entire family of 10, because, since his absence from the family home, poverty and destitution had encamped there.

The letter was written two days before her deed. The prison officials say if they could have gotten to the letter sooner the tragedy could have been prevented "but the sorting and distribution of mail has been greatly handicapped and slowed down by troubles since the fire."

EXPANSION PLANNED

Governor Cooper and the prison commission decided to provide accommodations for 1000 additional prisoners at the London farm, expansion of which has been delayed 13 years, to be a prison farm to which well-behaved prisoners like the 322 dead could be sent from the penitentiary.

Harry McLaughlin, president of the Ohio Federation of Labor, who is a member of the special commission appointed by Cooper to "investigate" again the prison needs of the state, declared yesterday that a 10-year program requiring the expenditure of $75,000,000 should be embarked upon at once to relieve "the disgraceful prison conditions existing everywhere in the state."

Cooper said McLaughlin's estimate was too high. He thought $25,000,000 might be enough.

COOLIDGE ASKS TOLERANCE

Returning to the home of his forefathers to open one of the first celebrations of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary observance, Calvin Coolidge, only living ex-president of the United States, called for a greater spirit of tolerance in a speech at Watertown high school yesterday.

The ex-president and Mrs. Coolidge visited Watertown accompanied by Gov. and Mrs. Allen. They left the State House in automobiles and were met near Watertown by Troop F, 11th Cavalry, of the National Guard, and the 11th Cavalry band.

Thousands lined the curbs along the route to the high school and gave Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge an enthusiastic welcome.

The ex-president's speech was broadcast over a national hookup of the National Broadcasting Co.

"Nationally we should give consideration to the settlers of the Bay State Colony," he said. "But we should not stress the errors they made—rather we should enlarge upon the virtues they exemplified.

"If we do study their errors it should be with a view to avoid repetition of them in our day.

"They were people who knew how to think and act for themselves. They were imbued with the very spirit of independence. With their unshrinking ideals they laid the foundations of free government."

GRAND JURY HEARS GARRETT CASE AS HULTMAN PLANS NEW SHIFTS

SIX CAPTAINS FACE LOSS OF POSTS

At Least Two Cops Said to Be Slated for Suspension; New Head in Raids

was a raider, was retired on pension at roll call this morning.

The fact that he was granted a pension in the light of Atty.-Gen. Warner's report, which found him "grossly negligent" and incompetent, called forth a storm of protest in many quarters.

He denied that his application for retirement, which Commissioner Hultman granted without realizing he was doing so, was a result of the Attorney-General's findings, but in the light of those findings, the new police head would have had no alternative, apparently, except to file charges against him.

Had such charges been filed Capt. Patterson would not have been in the "good standing" legally required for pension, it was pointed out.

SIX CAPTAINS TO GO

Now, by quick action and an admitted misunderstanding, he has assured himself of an income of $2000 for the rest of his life, and the city cannot do other than pay that income, Corporation Counsel Silverman having ruled that Mayor Curley's approval of his application was not necessary.

In well-informed police circles it is said that the following captains will shortly be retired, not necessarily as a direct result of the Garrett case, but in the general rehabilitation resulting from it:

Arthur B. McConnell, Hanover st.; Perley S. Skillings, Milk st.; Herbert W. Goodwin, Lagrange st.; Richard Fitzgerald, Dudley st.; James F. Smith, West Roxbury; John F. Driscoll, Mattapan.

Capt. John J. Mullen, E. Dedham st., is expected to be transferred from the South End division.

Several of the division leaders are said to have contemplated retirement before the Garrett proceedings.

Commissioner Hultman is expected to suspend Sergt. Timothy and Special Officer Tiernan, the only two members of the force named by a witness as having received graft.

There is a shakeup due at headquarters. If Capt. James H. Watkins does not elect to retire, he is due to be placed in a better and more important post than he was given by Commissioner Wilson when he was transferred from the Mattapan station following a dispute which his men had with Garrett.

JOB FOR McDEVITT.

Superintendent Crowley, it is believed, will remain in his post at least until fall, when he may retire. Commissioner Hultman thinks highly of his capabilities.

Some time probably will elapse before there is a general shakeup of lieutenants, sergeants and patrolmen, such transfers probably awaiting changes in the division commands.

Deputy Superintendent James S. McDevitt appears destined for the superintendency when Crowley steps out. He has long been one of the most popular officers in the department and his division, when he commanded the Joy st. station, was commonly said to have been the cleanest in the city.

The joint rules committee of the Legislature was to meet today in another executive session to consider the Garrett report with reference to possible legislation and also to decide whether Wilson shall be granted a hearing in accordance with his request.

It is believed a majority of the committee feels that Wilson has had his day in court and that anything he might now say would not effect their consideration of Warner's findings. There was absolutely no chance, it was said, that the committee would grant his request to be allowed to summon and question witnesses.

COMMISSIONER ON RAIDS

An indication of the tactics of the new commissioner was given last night when, with Superintendent Crowley, he personally raided a number of speakeasies and disorderly houses in several parts of the city. These included a number of dives which allegedly operated under police protection.

The raids were easily the most spectacular police action taken since the advent of prohibition and caused a scare throughout the so-called underworld.

Commissioner Hultman and Supt. Crowley were unescorted except for the police chauffeur, Patrolman Joseph Leahy. Supt. Crowley was picked up at his home in Dorchester and after a brief stop at police headquarters the raiding tour began.

The first stop was on Carver st. The police car pulled up as a man was entering the door. Supt. Crowley leaped out of the machine and crashed through the door behind the man. Commr. Hultman was right at his heels.

CONTINUE TOUR

They said that about 15 men were in the building and charged that liquor had been destroyed while they were entering. They ordered the 15 men out and then continued on to a house on Common st. Here they found nine men gathered around, but no liquor was in evidence.

One man, under the influence of liquor, was arrested by the police heads and turned over to the patrolman on the route. He was later booked at the La Grange st. station.

The next stop was at a place on Shawmut ave. Again the officials claimed that the liquor had been dumped but they ordered several men out of the building. Several more were ordered out of another alleged club in Tremont st., just south of Broadway.

The commissioner and superintendent then stopped on Columbus ave.; West Canton st., and Columbus ave., all suspected houses of ill fame. They found that all three had been closed and were informed by Sergt. John Dunleavy of the East Dedham st. station that they had been under surveillance of plain clothes men for two weeks.

Capt. Patterson will be formally retired at police roll-call today despite the fact that Commr. Hultman, in signing the pension application, thought that the mayor's signature was necessary to make the document official.

Hultman at the outset of his career as head of the police department stands in the peculiar position of having granted the pension request without his full approval, and under the law nothing can be done about it.

Both Mayor Curley and the commissioner believed that the former's signature was a requisite, but Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman, who advises both the city and the police department, has declared that all legal requirements have been satisfied.

Patterson therefore will become today an officer retired in "good standing" within a few days of the completion of the Garrett investigation, in which he was submitted to a severe grilling at the hands of Atty. Damon E. Hall, and of the submission of the Governor report, in which Patterson was charged with gross negligence and incompetency.

3 MORE STATES JOIN BONE DRY LIST IN POLL

North Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee Go Over 50 Per Cent for Enforcement

North Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee have joined Kansas and Arkansas in voting over 50 per cent for strict enforcement of the prohibition law, according to the Literary Digest's main poll, the total vote of which has passed the 4,000,000 mark.

Only three states, Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island, have a majority vote for repeal.

Of the 4,150,017 votes in the eighth and current report of the major poll by the magazine, 1,248,589, or 30.09 per cent vote for enforcement; 1,248,849, or 29.68 per cent register for modification, and 1,660,579, or 40.23 per cent are for repeal.

KANSAS DRYEST

While there has been no marked change in the ratios of the three groups, it is noted that there is a general trend in the later reports toward a dryer vote.

For the first time since the poll started the vote for enforcement passes that for modification.

Kansas continues to lead as the dryest state in the poll and Connecticut also continues to head the wet column.

OTHER STATES' VOTE

Although there is no clear majority, Louisiana and New York each have a vote of over 49 per cent for repeal.

Over 40 per cent of the vote in Alabama, Colorado, Iowa, Mississippi, Nebraska, South Carolina and Texas is for enforcement, while in Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Wyoming and the District of Columbia over 40 per cent of the ballots are registered for repeal.

BEAT SCORED BY AMERICAN

Half an hour ahead of other evening papers in Newspaper Row and other downtown points, newsboys selling the Boston Evening American yesterday were showing the news that Capt. George Patterson, prominent figure in the Garrett investigation, had applied for a pension.

In conformity with its aim to give its readers the big story first the Evening American rushed this news to the presses and gave the city the story far in advance of its competitors.

While the Evening American newsboys were shouting, "Cop's Patterson Asks for Pension," newsboys handling the other Boston papers were silent. With good reason. Their papers did not have the story!

Incidentally Station WHDH, broadcasting from the studio in the Boston Evening American, was the first to place the story that Patterson's retirement was in effect—that Mayor Curley's signature was not necessary.

NURSE BATTLES 2 ASSAILANTS IN WORCESTER

Molested for Second Time in a Year, Catherine Ahaesy Fights Off Men in Auto

Worcester, May 9—For the second time in a year Miss Catherine Ahaesy, 20, of King st., was assailed today in Woodland st., near her home, when two men tried to force her into an auto.

Miss Ahaesy, a nurse, was returning from the home of a patient when the sedan drew up to the curb.

Without a word, she told police, the two men grabbed her, and she fought them. In the tussle her hand went through a window of the car and glass cut her head and hands.

Escaping the clutches of the men, she ran to Woodland st. fire station calling for help, but her assailants escaped before firemen could respond.

A year ago Miss Ahaesy was accosted by a man near the same spot and when she repulsed him he inflicted five knife wounds in her left arm.

She could give no clue to the men in either assault.

Garages and hideouts of cars were being searched today by police for a sedan with a broken window.

HARVARD BOYS IN RIOT AGAIN

Reports that a celebration would be held on the streets of Cambridge by Harvard students last night resulted in the gathering of more than 300 students in front of the Lampoon Building on Plympton and Mt. Auburn sts. shortly after 11 o'clock, with shouting and hilarity that but faintly echoed the disturbance in the same locality on Wednesday night.

Bottles were thrown freely and parked cars were pushed into the street as the students tried in vain to draw a special detail of police to the scene. Two or three officers patrolling their beats in the neighborhood did not disturb the spring-stricken students.

Shortly before midnight a group of special Harvard police under Charles A. Apted broke up the assembly and sent the youths to their respective dormitories on threatening to report them to the dean.

Carl Parker, 20, of 23 Linnaean st., Cambridge, a Harvard student, was sentenced to five days in the House of Correction.

He was found guilty yesterday in 3d District Court, East Cambridge, of disturbing the peace at Harvard sq., Wednesday night. Parker appealed and was held in $50 surety for appearance before the Superior Court.

Atty. Selvitella Is Candidate for House

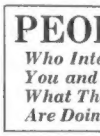
King Plans Flight From Canada to Russia

New York, May 9—Over a land of forest and snow, where a forced landing means certain death, George E. King of New York will attempt a flight next fall from Canada to Soviet Russia.



George E. King

Starting at St. John, N. B., King will fly across Canada, following for a short distance the U. S. border, later veering off toward Alaska. From there he will hop across the Bering Straits to make his next landing in Northern Asia. His ultimate goal will be Moscow.

By completing the trip within eight or 10 days, King hopes to establish the feasibility of a regular traffic route for high powered planes operating between Moscow and Canada.

Scheme for Making Gold Branded as Imaginary

Paris, May 9—Centuries ago alchemists working in the seclusion of secret laboratories struggled to transpose base metals into gold. The problem has been paramount in the minds of scientists ever since.

Recently the sober Academy of Sciences was thrown into an uproar when a learned paper by Mme. Marie-nau, a Rumanian scientist, was read, which discussed a method which Mme. Mariecnau was convinced would transmute baser metals into gold.

Mme. Mariecnau

Dignified scientists listened to the reading o fthe learned paper as long as possible. Finally M. Fabry could contain himself no longer, leaped to his feet and accused Mme. Mariecnau of employing too much imagination.

26 Cops Shifted in Lowell Shakeup

Lowell, May 9—The Lowell police department experienced a severe shakeup last night with the transfer of 26 patrolmen, including three members of the liquor squad on the job only five weeks.

Officers Thomas H. McSweeney and Bernard J. Gilbo were put back on traffic posts with Patrolman Joseph A. Clark going back in uniform to a night beat. All three men were placed on the liquor squad five weeks ago.

Four officers were picked to replace the three sent back to harness. They are Traffic Officer James H. Morrison, Michael J. O'Neil, James F. McNally and Horace Finn.

GLAD TO HAVE REST, SAYS PATTERSON

37 Years Long Time in Harness; Has Plenty of Memories of Work

Capt. George W. Patterson packed up the treasured mementoes of 37 years' service as a police officer yesterday, said goodbye to a few close friends and walked down the broad stairs of police headquarters a private citizen.

There was a catch in his voice and the trace of a tear in his eye as he left his desk and started for home at 13 Moultrie st., Dorchester.

His wife met him at the door as he returned from work for the last time and escorted him to his easy chair in the living room.

It was there the reporter found the 64-year-old police veteran. At first he was averse to discussing his retirement on pension, but later did in that half-fellow-well-met fashion that is peculiarly his.

LONG IN HARNESS

"My retirement has nothing to do with the Garrett investigation, old pal," he said. "I have been thinking of getting out of harness for more than a year now. You know, 37 years is a long time and personally, I think it is long enough for any man to work," he smiled.

A lively collie played about his feet as Patterson considered what he is going to do with all the spare time he will have from now on.

"My plans may be summed up in the word—rest. Very soon my wife and I will leave for a long vacation at our cottage in Maine. After that—well, I haven't looked that far ahead, but you will be safe in gambling that it won't be very strenuous."

The former chief of the police raiders has one problem that is causing him some thought. His retirement pension entitles him to $40 a week.

ECONOMY CAMPAIGN

"I don't know how we are going to get along on that," he offered. "I guess we will have to start a program of rigid economy."

Then the talk reverted to the Garrett investigation.

"I have only the highest respect for Atty.-Gen. Warner and Mr. Hall. They afforded me every courtesy during the sessions at the State House," Patterson said.

"But I had nothing to fear from that probe or any other, no matter how rigid or searching the scrutiny. Patterson has always been a square shooter, both in and out of the department," said my associate above it." He brightened at this.

His work as chief of the headquarters detail turned out interesting and he enjoyed it, but "in many aspects it was a thankless job trying to enforce a law in which so many people are opposed."

In addition to the fact that he has reached the retirement age of 60, Patterson was anxious to retire because he has been troubled with a throat affliction for several years. He plans to submit to an operation in the very near future.

In his long career on the police force Patterson has had many unusual assignments. At one time his official title was hurdy-gurdy inspector. Here his job was to patrol the streets of the city enforcing ordinances relative to the quality and quantity of the product offered by itinerant musicians.

HOBO INSPECTOR, TOO

He also examined the monkey always associated with the hurdy-gurdy and if its health was not up to par, or if it was a stranger to soap and water for any appreciable period, Patterson would issue orders that the defect be remedied immediately.

At another time he was "hobo" inspector. Of course, this was when this type of life was considered a profession as well as an art. Many a son of leisure owes his present standing to the good offices of Patterson, who taught him the ethics of the road—cleanliness, honesty and the like. If any resistance was offered to the teaching, the offending gentleman was shown the nearest road leading from Boston and bidden godspeed.

During his tour of duty at headquarters, Patterson endeared himself to all the men under him. He was known as a fair boss.

When any of his men were sick on payday he would either take their money to them himself or delegate his chauffeur to do so.

HAS MANY RELICS

On one occasion when Garrett had been out for several days Patterson brought his money to him as he felt that "Garrett might need it to buy his Sunday dinner."

His office at headquarters was a treasure house of relics of raids and similar services. He has a collection of 500 photographs showing narcotic and liquor paraphernalia seized by the liquor squad.

On the wall of his office he had a sign seized in a raid in Chinatown which read, "No Credit," in Chinese, Jewish, Arabic and several other languages.

"COUNTY RINGS" BLAMED FOR KEEPING CONVICTS' LIVES IN PERIL

BLOCK RAZING OF PRISON FINE TRAP

Penal Society Assails Obsolete System Employed by Massachusetts

Political "county rings" are specifically named by the National Society of Penal Information as the cause of Massachusetts' failure to abandon the State prison at Charlestown and speed up the construction of a new one.

This powerful society, whose activities are national in scope, has an advisory committee of prominent social workers and citizens in each state.

The Massachusetts representatives, who endorse the society's findings as to conditions in this State, are Dr. Richard C. Cabot of the Harvard Medical School, Rabbi Harry Levi of Temple Adath Israel, Brookline; Lewis Parkhurst of Winchester, former State Senator; Mrs. James J. Storrow, social leader of Boston and Lincoln, and Prof. Harry E. Barnes.

OLDEST IN COUNTRY

Reporting on Charlestown prison the society's investigators write:

"The most significant feature of this institution is the plant itself. Severe criticisms have been levelled at it. The State Department of Correction, wardens and public-spirited citizens have repeatedly called attention of the State to its shortcomings.

"It is the oldest prison plant in the country. The city has long since grown so close around it that expansion is impossible and both light and air are affected by factory smoke. It has been said that the site is assessed by the Boston assessors at over $1,500,000 and is too valuable for the State to retain for its present use.

"The ancient cells, most of which have only buckets, are rendered habitable only by rigid attention to sanitation and a general understanding of upkeep superior to that of most old prisons. The construction of 125 years ago cannot be adjusted to modern standards.

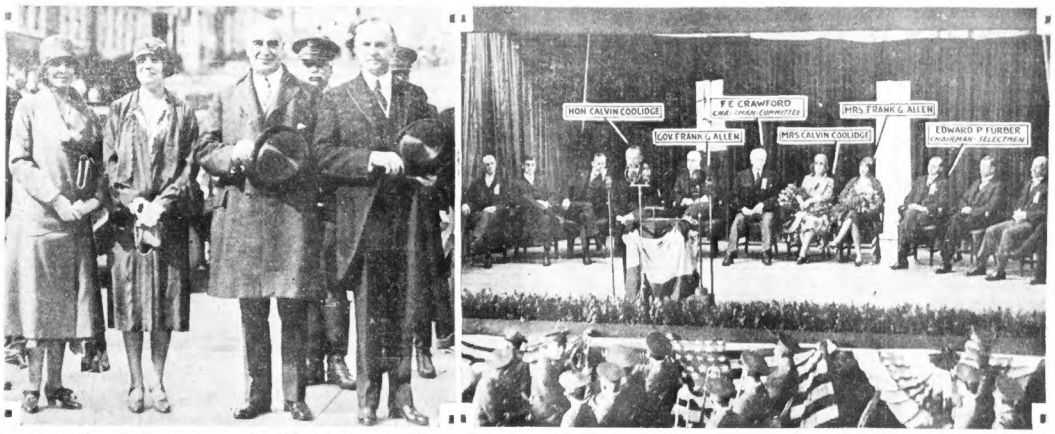
ASSAIL "RINGS"

"It is probable that the real reason why Massachusetts has not built a new prison is the power of the so-called 'county rings.' Many offenders who in other States would be sent to prison are sent in Massachusetts to the county jails.

"It is impossible to bring these county jails to a high standard and inequality of treatment for similar offenses results.

"UNTIL THE POWER OF THESE ELEMENTS, WHICH DEMAND THE RETENTION OF PRISONERS IN THE COUNTIES IS BROKEN, MASSACHUSETTS WILL FAIL TO MEET ITS PENAL PROBLEM SUCCESSFULLY."

Coolidge Returns to Home of Forefathers for Tercentenary Celebration



Mrs. Calvin Coolidge Accompanied by Governor and Mrs. Frank G. Allen, ex-President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge visited Watertown yesterday to take part in the Tercentenary celebration. The ex-President's forefathers settled in Watertown nearly 300 years ago. Residents gave the couple an enthusiastic reception. (Staff photo.)

A plea for a greater spirit of tolerance was voiced by ex-President Coolidge in his Tercentenary speech at Watertown high school, which was broadcast over a national network. Principles of government which will insure the progress of this country can be learned from the struggles of the early settlers, he said. Governor Allen also spoke, and Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Coolidge were given flowers.

36 COUNTRIES PROTEST U. S. TARIFF BILL

Some of the Nations Have Sent as Many as 35 Notes Assailing Schedule

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN
Universal Service

Washington, May 9—Thirty-six foreign countries have filed protests against the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill with the State Department through their respective embassies and legations, it became known today.

In many instances the protests were couched in such language that it was necessary for the Secretary of State to point out the rather "intemperate" character of the criticism contained in the notes.

SENT TO COMMITTEE

All of these protests have been passed on to the committees in Congress charged with revision of the present tariff laws.

None of the foreign countries have filed less than two protests to the projected rates and some of them, such as Great Britain, France and Italy, have deposited as many as 35.

The government of Persia, through its diplomatic representative here, regards "with consternation" the increased tariff on hand-made rugs and carpets.

The Portugese government wrote a note to Secretary Stimson in which it declared of the tariff on cork:

"The rapacious greed displayed in certain quarters in this (the tariff) question is not, our dealings with American business men in the past have convinced us, a trait of the American people."

FRANCE'S CLAIM

A comparison of the purchases made by Americans of French goods and by French people of American goods revealed that each French citizen buys $9.20 worth of American goods while each American citizen buys only $1.32 of French goods. This was contained in one of the many French complaints against the "absolutely excessive" rates in the tariff bill now under preparation.

In another note [illegible] Acting Secretary William R. Castle, Jr., the French Foreign Office declared that the tariff provisions displayed "a lack of reasoning which clearly exceeds even the most extreme protectionist principle."

Germany is practically the only important European country to accept the tariff bill without undue complaint.

Solons Join in Fight to Save Convicts

the measure is believed favorable.

Probably the most ardent supporter of the resolve besides its sponsor is Senator Joseph J. Mulhern, father of the Garrett inquiry.

LIVES IN BALANCE

"Even a large expenditure, such as is required for putting the Norfolk prison camp in condition to accommodate the Charlestown inmates, would be fully justified," Mulhern declared.

"In fact, in view of the importance of the problem, it is no more than the situation demands to build an entirely new prison. No financial aspect is worth consideration when human lives are in the balance."

Representatives Anthony A. McNulty, Lewis R. Sullivan, Jr., Thomas H. Carr, and many others were quoted as being firmly in favor of the measure.

Carr declared that work is progressing so slowly at the Norfolk prison that "it will be at least three years before it can be used to relieve the congestion already existing at Charlestown, if present plans are followed."

"Even before the Columbus, O., disaster, I was horrified by conditions I found on visiting the Charlestown State prison," he said. "At that time I was formulating plans to bring matters to the attention of the governor."

"When the Columbus penitentiary burned down, with its awful toll of human lives, I set to work on the problem presented by our own penitentiary.

"Rep. Finnegan's resolve is the key to the situation, and in view of the fact that the Boston Evening American is backing the fight for demolition of the Charlestown firetrap, I am enlisting for whole-hearted support both Finnegan and the American."

It was pointed out generally that the present building program at Norfolk is in no way satisfactory.

In addition to Carr's declaration that it would be three years before Norfolk could accommodate the inmates of Charlestown, unless immediate action is taken, other legislators who have studied crime problems in the State, declared that at the end of the three years there would probably be still a large number of convicts in Charlestown.

PLEDGE BACKING

Rep. McNulty noted that the State prison is greatly overcrowded at the present time and that there is no guarantee that the same state of affairs may not exist in three years.

"I am solidly behind the Finnegan resolve," he said. "Anything that means speed in completion of Norfolk and the abolishment of the antiquated fire trap structure in Charlestown is no more than a humanitarian measure that demands every man's support."

Rep. Sullivan suggests putting some of Massachusetts unemployed citizens to work to complete the new prison at Norfolk.

"Such a plan could be adopted easily under the provisions of Finnegan's resolve," he pointed out. "It would stimulate employment at a time when it is greatly needed."

"I am not losing sight of the fact that the lives of prisoners lodged in the freight yards at Charlestown are daily imperilled by fire hazard, but I would use the employment question as one more argument as to why we will go ahead on this resolve.

"The way the new prison is being built at Norfolk means nothing but more delay—more procrastination. It means that it will be years before we will free the Charlestown prisoners from the dangers of a death by fire or suffocation."

Charles Lajoie will be skipped on the trip to the East, but another pilot will fly the ship on the record attempt. On this eastern trip Mears' new mascot, "Tailwind," a wooly Sealyham terrier, will recieve his baptism of aerial travel in preparation for the longer voyage.

Mears will attempt to beat the round-the-world record made by the Graf Zeppelin.

Victor Talks

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, who defeated Senator Charles S. Deneen in the campaign for the Republican Senatorial nomination in Illinois, will tell about her victory in a radio talk over station WAIU tonight.

621,762 in San Francisco

San Francisco, May 9—The 1930 population of San Francisco was announced by census supervisors as 621,762.

A car needs a home. Have you a garage for rent? Tell about it and give location in the Want Real Ads. That's the way to fill it.

LEAGUE COURT FOE ON AIR

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick tonight will tell the nation by radio the significance of her recent astounding victory in the Illinois primaries.

Member of Congress and campaigner extraordinary, Mrs. McCormick will answer her critics and emphasize the fact that the dominant issue of her campaign was her opposition to the League Court and European entanglements. Her address will be broadcast over the Columbia network.

Since Mrs. McCormick defeated Senator Charles S. Deneen for the nomination for senator by 200,000 majority, she has been the talk of the country.

In that primary battle, a woman for the first time in history won the senatorial nomination of a major party. It was a personal victory in large measure, for Mrs. McCormick stumped the State from one end to the other, and asked no favor because of sex.

She made the League Court an issue, drove that issue home to the voters, and her victory has been regarded as of nation-wide significance.

In her radio address, Mrs. McCormick will give for the first time her own version of her campaign, the importance of her stand against the League Court, and the significance of the huge vote which was polled in her behalf.

Her radio broadcast will begin at 5:15 p. m. Eastern standard time, at 6.15 a. m. Eastern daylight saving time.

Killing of Two Convicts to Go Unpunished

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
Universal Service

Columbus, O., May 9—Ohio's murder average was fattened today. Two more prisoners were added to the death roll of 322 in the overcrowded, ancient penitentiary.

James W. Rose, 40, of Cleveland, who had served five years of a 10-year minimum sentence for burglary, and Albert Freeman, also of Cleveland, serving a like sentence for manslaughter, were shot and instantly killed by a machine gun mounted on the prison wall.

KILLING "ACCIDENTAL"

Their deaths were described by prison officials and military forces that enforce martial law in the prison as "accidental and unfortunate."

A young State trooper was working on the machine gun when it discharged. He "did not know it was loaded," according to the official explanation.

The prisoners who were killed had performed heroic service in the disastrous fire. Freeman had been severely burned while attempting to release others from the locked death cells and he had been discharged from the hospital but a day before he met death.

NO REPRIMAND

The young State trooper responsible for the deaths will not be reprimanded, it was said. The affair was one of those accidents "which just naturally happen."

The deaths followed by six hours another outburst of protest among the prisoners. They had fired their tents in the stockade in a demonstration against what they claim to be "hard-boiled" and excessive punishments imposed upon fellow prisoners by the prison officials.

CHILDREN BURIED

Seven Columbus children killed by their mother because she could no longer provide for them, were buried yesterday afternoon. At about the time of their burial the penitentiary officials opened a letter from the mother to the father, who is an inmate, in which she disclosed her plans to make away with herself and the entire family of 10, because, since his absence from the family home, poverty and destitution had encamped there.

The letter was written two days before her dead. The prison officials say if they could have gotten to the letter sooner the tragedy could have been prevented "but the sorting and distribution of mail has been greatly handicapped and slowed down by trouble since the fire."

EXPANSION PLANNED

Governor Cooper and the prison commission decided to provide accommodations for 1000 additional prisoners at the London State farm, expansion of which has been delayed 13 years, to be a prison farm to which well-behaved prisoners like the 322 dead could be sent from the penitentiary.

Harry McLaughlin, president of the Ohio Federation of Labor, who is a member of the special commission appointed by Cooper to "investigate" again the prison needs of the State, declared yesterday that a 10-year program requiring the expenditure of $75,000,000 should be embarked upon at once to relieve "the disgraceful prison conditions existing everywhere in the state."

Cooper said McLaughlin's estimate was too high. He thought $25,000,000 might be enough.

Mother Has Photo Made, Then Murders 7 Children

COOLIDGE ASKS TOLERANCE

Returning to the home of his forefathers to speak one of the last celebrations of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary observances, Calvin Coolidge, only living ex-President of the United States, called for a greater spirit of tolerance in a speech at Watertown high school yesterday.

The ex-president and Mrs. Coolidge visited Watertown accompanied by Gov. and Mrs. Allen. They left the State House in automobiles escorted by Watertown police to Troop E, 101st Cavalry, of the National Guard, and the 104th Cavalry Band.

Thousands lined the route along the route to the high school and gave Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge an enthusiastic welcome.

The ex-president's speech was broadcast over a national hookup of the National Broadcasting Co.

"Naturally we should give consideration to the settlers of the Bay State Colony," he said. "But we should not at stress the errors they made—rather we should enlarge upon the virtues they exemplified.

"If we do study their errors it should be with a view to avoid repetition of them in our day.

"They were people who knew how to think and act for themselves. They were imbued with the very spirit of independence. With their unshrinking ideals they laid the foundations of free government."

Whalen to Testify on Reds in Secret

Washington, May 9 (INS)—Grover Whalen, police commissioner of New York, will tell his story of alleged Soviet intrigue in behalf of communism in the United States in secret before the House Immigration Committee today, despite pleas for open sessions, it was indicated here.

Maine Man Freed of Poison Charge

Skowhegan, Me., May 9—No indictment was found against Ivan Williamson of Madison, who had been charged in the lower court with sending poison to a man with intent to kill Fred Bean of Madison on February 25, 1930. He was discharged from custody.

GOVERNOR SQ. TUNNEL URGED BY SEN. FISH

The bill for the extension of the Boylston st. subway to relieve congestion at Governor sq., although criticised roundly by Senator Erland F. Fish of Brookline, Republican Senate floor leader, nevertheless was urged by him in a statement read to the upper branch.

"The committee on metropolitan affairs has voted unanimously to report this bill providing for the extension of the Boylston st. subway at Governor sq.," he explained.

"The financial provisions of the bill, are, I believe, proper and fair to all concerned. It was considered that the problem at Governor sq. was at least 50 per cent a Boston automobile traffic problem.

CITIES DEMAND

"Therefore, the bill provides that the city of Boston shall assume the obligation to pay 50 per cent of any deficit that may occur in any year without any refund from the car riders through the Elevated company in profitable years.

"The balance of any deficit is to be paid by the Commonwealth, in the first instance, and assessed to the cities and towns served by the Elevated when possible.

"There has been a tremendous demand for the passage of legislation providing for this extension. The newspapers have demanded it; the Mayor of Boston has demanded it, and the Metropolitan Planning Board has demanded it.

HITS PLAN AS UNWISE

"The Legislature has been adversely criticised for its slowness in passing such legislation. One of the main reasons why the Legislature has hesitated in this matter is that the plan of construction proposed does not appear to be a particularly wise solution of the problem.

"It is proposed to bring the Beacon st. lines to the surface east of the Boston and Albany railroad bridge in the middle of Beacon st., where it is comparatively narrow and where now automobile traffic fills the whole street during a large part of the day.

"The subway entrance at that point will create a neck of the bottle situation which will soon become intolerable. Moreover, when the time does come to extend the subway to a point beyond Audubon circle (which is the only proper solution of the problem at the present time), the added cost of making the change will amount to a great many thousands of dollars.

MUST HEED APPEAL

"It is unfortunate that a better plan of construction is not contemplated by those who have the final say in the matter. I have no doubt that the legislature would authorize the expediture of the necessary additional money, but it is useless to do so if such better plan will not be considered.

"Our only justification in passing this legislation is because of the necessary additional money, done at Governor sq. and because the plan proposed is the only one which those who have the final say will consider at this time."

Action on the bill will be taken by the Senate at its next session.

HOOVER COMBS LIST FOR NEW JUSTICE

By WILLIAM Y. FLYTHE
Universal Service

Washington, May 9—President Hoover today planned to immediately submit to the Senate for approval the nomination of a member of the United States Supreme Court to take the place of Judge John J. Parker, North Carolina, who was formally rejected by that body Wednesday.

It has been definitely decided that the name of Judge Parker is not to be resubmitted, and that as soon as a decision can be reached a new name will be sent in.

NOMINATION NEXT WEEK.

The President began consideration of a long list of names which were before him when he nominated Judge Parker. He also has had a series of conferences with members of his cabinet and administration leaders who supported him in the losing fight for approval of Judge Parker.

The impression prevailed that President Hoover would send his nomination to the Senate early next week. This will give him time to consult with his cabinet at a formal meeting today and to confer with friends over the weekend at a contemplated trip to his Fisher camp in Virginia.

Judge Hugh N. Cardozo, New York, has been strongly urged for appointment, but it is understood that he is not "geographically acceptable." Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Stone are from New York State and the selection of Judge Cardozo would give that State three seats on the bench.

MENTIONED FOR POST

Other names under consideration are Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war in the Wilson administration; John W. Davis, prominent lawyer and Democratic candidate for President against Coolidge in 1924; Judges Learned and Augustus Hand, New York, and Judge William S. Kenyon, now serving on the President's commission on law enforcement.

Also mentioned are Owen J. Roberts, Philadelphia, who was selected by the government to prosecute the oil fraud cases; Judge Von Moschzisker of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court; Judge Arba S. Van Valkenburgh, Missouri, and Fenton Whitlock Booth, Illinois.

AGED GENIUS TO SHOW HIS ART AT HARVARD

Patrons of art will pay homage at the Harvard Contemporary Exhibit next week to the work of John Kane, a 78-year-old Pittsburgh house painter, whose genius was discovered in the twilight of his life.

Five of his paintings were accepted for the 18th American Exhibition of Associated Artists of Pittsburgh in 1928 at which he was awarded second prize.

At the same exhibit last year he was awarded the Carnegie Institute prize for the best group submitted.

Kane was born in West Calder, Edinburgh, in 1859, of Irish parents. In 1880, he migrated to Pittsburgh. He never had the advantage of formal art training, but from his early youth always had the desire to paint on canvas.

Hyannis Normal Gets Medford School Head

Herbert H. Howes, superintendent of schools of Medford, will tender his resignation to the school committee at its next meeting, May 19, to accept the principalship of the Hyannis Normal School. He takes up his work at Hyannis Aug. 1.

Born in Dennis, Mr. Howes was educated at Bridgewater Normal, Rhode Island College of Education and Harvard Graduate School of Education. He taught in Readsboro, Vt., Palmer, Broad Brook, Conn., Middleboro, North Attleboro and Everett, and was supervising superintendent of schools at Norwood six years before taking charge of the Medford schools in 1927.

Somerville Chamber Dines Monday Night

The Somerville Chamber of Commerce will hold a dinner meeting Monday evening at 6:30 in Grand Army Hall, Highland ave., Somerville. Charles Leo Shea is the new president and will preside.

Speakers will be Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville, Mayor Andrew A. Casassa of Revere, William J. Fortune, assistant vice-president of the Shawmut National Bank, and John A. Colbert of Watertown.

Wife's Story Jails Man in Burglaries

Worcester, May 9—An amazing story of a young wife who said her husband forced her under threats to act as lookout during his burglaries last night led to the arrest of Selvin Zoppo, 25, of Shrewsbury. He was booked on three charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

Mrs. Zoppo, 22, and attractive, told police Zoppo made her sit in their auto and act as his lookout. A few days ago the wife appeared against Zoppo on a charge of assault and battery. She appeared with a blackened eye. Police, curious as to the reason for the assault, for which Zoppo was fined $10, drew the confession from the wife.

Chinese President Leads Raid on Rebels

Shanghai, May 9 (US)—Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, President of the Nanking government, today is in command of Nanking troops pushing northward in a campaign to subdue the rebel legions of Gens. Yan Hsi-Shan and Feng-Yu-Hsiang. Gen Yan has his troops concentrated at Tsi-Yuan-Fu, and Feng is at Cheng-Chow, preparing for battle. Gen. Chiang after five months' preparation, will launch a general offensive simultaneously along the Lunghai and Peiping-Hankow railways, and will remain at the head of his own division. The advance was originally set for May 2, but was postponed because of Communist disturbances.

GRAVE VANDALS SOUGHT

Milford, May 9—Desecration of veterans' graves in St. Mary's Cemetery is being investigated by the local police.

The fact that bronze legion markers were taken from several graves in the burial ground was discovered by Adjt. Benjamin T. Burns of Sergt. John W. Powers Post. Dr. Francis H. Lally and Walter R. McFarl were appointed a committee to investigate the matter.

They learned that 29 bronze markers were missing at St. Mary's, but none had been discarded at Pine Grove or Vernon Grove Cemeteries.

Increase in World Exports Seen

Government's Market Survey Expected to Lead to Business Boost

A gain in exports from the port of Boston is expected for 1930 as a result of a world market survey launched by the U. S. government at the request of four Hub business men.

This federal report will be given out at the coming session of the New England Export Conference of some 30 organizations on Wednesday at the Hotel Statler.

Some months ago Mrs. Edith M. Rogers, member of Congress, arranged an appointment with Department of Commerce men in Washington for the four Bostonians.

In this party urging a survey of New England's—and Boston's—potential world markets, were: Prof. G. E. Roorbach, professor of foreign trade at the Harvard business administration school; Edward C. Cutler, Jr., of the foreign trade division of the Chamber of Commerce; Frank S. Davis of the Maritime Association, and Harvey Sweetser, now of Toronto, predecessor to Hugh Sutler of the local federal office of foreign and domestic commerce.

The report is to incorporate a list of 100 possible markets for New England goods. Most of the exporting will be through the port of Boston. Some of this trade flow to foreign shores already has started because of a slowing up of the domestic markets.

Harbor Courtesies

Through the courtesy of Mayor Curley, the government boat Waterhouse has been placed at the disposal of President Philipp Heineken, of the North German Lloyd line, who will be here for a special sailing Saturday. When the Karlsruhe sails from Boston at 3 o'clock, she will be escorted down the harbor by the firehoats and aircraft. President Heineken and his party will witness the demonstration from the Waterhouse.

Diary of Modern Mariner

Today we are starting a new feature which seems to fall under the title of "Diary of a Modern Mariner." The first entry reads:

Today we cruised the docks incognito. Saw Honest Jim Charlton arguing some baseball scores at the army base. Heard Ken Brown, United Fruit banana inspector, singing the company refrain of "Yes, We Have Some Bananas." Was told Ken once was with Gus Edwards. We next witnessed "One Punch" Mackey practicing his stuff. Then ambled over to pray that John "Tiny" Somers would not slip as he dashed up side of ship's ladder. Saw "Wildcat" Tom Densely in distance heading for his big garage. Kept out of his way!

Saves Flaming Wife by Quick Rug Work

Providence, R. I., May 9—By wrapping his wife in rugs, George McCallum saved her life yesterday when her clothing became ignited at a kitchen fire. Both husband and wife were so badly burned that they were removed to Rhode Island Hospital.

Longshoreman's Gazette

CARL MORRISON, Editor

Vol. 2 No. 8

Today we are presenting Capt. Ernest D. Sproul, manager of the marine department of Marsters, Inc., travel firm which is agent of the Munson and other lines. This colorful harbor character is known as the "human log book," for he has an amazing memory and ability to spin yarns. He has followed the sea for 40 years.

Capt. Sproul
Radtrack Photo

Capt. Sproul has had a varied sea experience since he left his Maine home at the age of 13. He has been an assistant U. S. steamboat inspector and a wartime marine superintendent in the port of Boston. Lately he has been closely associated with Charles E. Ware in the shipping business.

This self-styled "old shellback" has remarkable health and powers of endurance for a man of his years. He is very fond of coffee but at a dare from his wife went an entire month without tasting the drink.

Commenting on his half-century record, he said:

"I'm still good for another 40 years."

Welcome to Texas

On June 8, a group of 35 business men from Houston, Texas, will arrive in Boston on a special train touring the country to advertise the new port. Leo Coughlin, whose Southern Steamship company sent the first ship into Houston harbor, is local representative for the visitors. John C. Mayfield, genial Eastern representative, was in Boston for a few days completing arrangements. Houston, once without a port, dredged a 50-mile shallow river to make harbor connections. Now she is first inland cotton port, first export cotton port and eighth in entire U. S. port commerce.

Today's Safety Rule

The Boston marine code as adopted by steamship, longshoremen and insurance representatives in its eighth rule strictly forbids workmen to toss gear into a hold or on to a deck without knowing that those below have signalled "all clear." Three men lost 55 days last year from injuries so caused.

Tom Yarrow Again

We have discovered another side to Tom Yarrow, often called the Will Rogers of the harbor. His hobby is reading, and he has an excellent memory, being able to quote from nearly every author of repute. He is a thorough reader of newspapers, also.

Wants Adding Machine

George W. Whitney, hard-working pier "super" of the United Fruit, has taken up golf. He made one hole in only three or four above par, and when arriving at the green shouted:

"Well, here we are at last. Bring the company adding machine to count my score."

Jack, the Hustler

So much interest was aroused by our item about John, "the hustler's son," that we have been asked to tell about the "hustler" himself. Jack Hanlon hustles from one job to another, never stalling. He is up with the morning newspapers, and knows where to report for work ahead of others. His hobby is following sports. He can reel off the pedigree of any horse, boxer, wrestler or runner, and his keen eyesight enables him to identify ships entering the mouth of the harbor.

China Clay Gains

Ten years ago Boston imported 26,779 tons of China clay. Imports increased to 40,063 last year. President French, of the Boston & Maine Railroad, introduced a new method of scooping out the clay, which in time will bring more business due to added speed.

Here's the Gub Again

Asked what happened to our cub reporter's series on harbor hobbies, we sent a recall to him on his vacation. This is his latest report:

"Eddie Noonan, dock representative for the coffee firm of Dwinnell-Wright Co., is an ardent baseball fan. He makes one rule which he never breaks, however, and that is never to witness Sunday baseball."

Has Two Nicknames

In our series on harbor nicknames, we have encountered a man with two. Joe Taft, who is ambitious to be a Boston policeman, is known as "Tango" and as "Next Month."

For the past few years friends have been asking Joe when he would get married. He always replies:

"Next month, sure."

Was First Enrolled

The Lorain of the Yankee Line is in port, getting ready to sail next Wednesday for Hamburg and Bremen. Capt. J. M. Caulk, for whom wedding bells recently sounded, is a lieutenant commander in the U. S. naval reserve, and his ship was the first to be enrolled in this district.

ASPARAGUS IS PLENTIFUL

Boston markets were swamped with asparagus today, due to the hot spell. Unprecedented sales are anticipated over the week-end in this commodity. Instead of the usual price of 50 to 60 cents a bunch, asparagus is selling for 25, 35 and 40 cents. Jobbers usually pay from $1.50 to $3 per crate for fancy asparagus. A truck arrived at the market yesterday noon over the road from South Carolina with 400 crates of asparagus. The driver disposed of the entire load for $40.

Larry Faces a Divorce Problem

Bright-haired, vital, alive, young Anne Murdock had been three years at the Eaton Advertising Agency when her opportunity came—the opportunity to become Eaton's personal secretary. To work with a man of Lawrence Eaton's breadth and power was something to dream of, for Anne had ambitions beyond a suburban home with Ted O'Hara who was on her own rung of the ladder. The only heavy Anne Murdock saw in her own home was that of her sister, Kathleen, who had lately decreed that home for a career in the chorus. But Eaton overhears a conversation between his secretary and young O'Hara, which leaves him wondering whether he may not have to surrender his efficient assistant to Cupid. Anne senses this and declares that she has no dreams whatever of matrimony. Eaton sends Anne on a business trip to Chicago. On her return she learns that Kathleen is planning on a runaway marriage.

CHAPTER XXIV

During that winter Eaton was so busy that he saw little of his wife. Linda was always away somewhere. And it was borne upon him during the first week in March, when she was again at Hot Springs, how little he missed her.

Dining one night with old friends, an especially happy couple, he found himself comparing his marriage with theirs. What had been lacking for so long between him and Linda?

They were friends. They respected each other. For a time their only deep tenderness had been physical, a holdover of their original attraction. They had drifted farther and farther apart.

If he and Linda both resented this fact until now, one might assume that it must be possible to go back and go ahead. Linda [illegible] love with a new [illegible].

But how did he know that? How did he know that she wasn't perfectly content as she was?

For on the same evening his hostess spoke to him seriously, jarring him out of his self-absorption.

"Larry," she said, "forgive me in advance if I overstep the bounds of a long and happy friendship—warn you."

"Just what do you mean?"

"Linda, John and I are devoted to Linda—and to you. And we are so sorry to see things going wrong between you."

"But they are not," he denied mechanically. "We're happy. Of course, I haven't been able to give Linda the sort of companionship she wants. I'm a busy man, Frances."

"If you don't give it to her, some one else will."

It was [illegible] thing that he had [illegible] up to himself. It wasn't [illegible] he knew Linda [illegible].

"She cares for some one else?" he asked, going straight to the point.

"I don't know"—Frances Marsh's face was troubled—"but I think so."

Larry Eaton was [illegible] "Dick Jameson" he asked.

"I think so," Mrs. Marsh said unhappily. "They like the same things; they've been thrown together so much. They were with us at Placid this winter—you wouldn't come, Larry; you never do, more's the pity—and I couldn't help seeing. Oh, it was nothing that you could put your finger on. Only, I've known Dick so long and for the last few years—well, he's given up everything, even that old, almost matrimonial entanglement, you remember? And he's always to be found where Linda is. I—I'm not a trouble-maker, Larry; I just want to tell you. It isn't too late."

"Thank you, Frances. Oh, I mean that. I'm not being sarcastic. It's been, I think, a good deal of a fool."

He sat up late that night, thinking, wondering, speculating. Twice he got up to write to his wife a frank, honest letter.

"We've made a mess of it, haven't we dear? Isn't there any way out?"

But he could not.

Did he in stark honesty want to begin all over again?

He knew that he did not. He knew that he had for Linda no single flame of passionate longing, no ardor bright enough to fire up into the ancient fires. And he knew that this quality of emotion, lost to him so far as Linda was concerned, still burned within him for another woman.

The question was, what did Linda want? He must put himself and his own desires apart. How far had she really left him? Was she [illegible]? And did she care for [illegible] who was his friend and [illegible]?

If she did? If she wanted her freedom?

His hear shook with the natural implication this led to. If she wanted her freedom, and he, after a decent interval, could go to Anne?

But he couldn't [illegible] further [illegible] he knew what Linda [illegible].

[illegible] Linda. He [illegible] her return and [illegible] Anne had an [illegible].

Eaton got along as best he could. But everything went wrong

LIGHTNING BOLT FIRES BARN; LOSS $200

Animals and Hay Are Lost in North Billerica; House Is Struck

Lowell, May 9—For the second time within 24 hours, lightning, it caused damage in the city or Lowell district, striking a barn at 143 Westford st. and a barn Oak st., North Billerica.

The cupola was ignited by the lightning and damage estimated at $200 was caused before firemen responding to an alarm shortly before 6 o'clock could extinguish the flames.

The North Billerica barn, owned by Joseph Malvestio, a florist, was completely destroyed and many tons of hay, a horse, a cow and several pigs were burned.

Billerica firemen responding to an alarm for the fire saved the Maladrino residence, which caught fire several times. Hose lines were run from Mud pond, more than 1000 feet away, and several streams of water were kept on the barn until the danger of its being burned was over.

LOWELL MAY GET GRANITE P. O.

Lowell, May 9—According to [illegible] received here, Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers has received information that the treasury department has called for bids for new granite and limestone construction of the new postoffice, although the latter type was originally decided upon.

Lowell, it is stated, does not favor a granite building but Mrs. Rogers feels that there is some hope of getting this type of construction now that bids have been called for [illegible] types. The bids are to be opened within a month.

NAVY PLANES WING OVER LOWELL

Keep Perfect Formation in the Flight; Thousands Are Thrilled by Sight

Lowell, May 9—Swooping down out of the east in perfect flying formation, nearly 100 scouting, bombing and torpedo planes from the navy airplane carriers flew over this city yesterday afternoon, giving its residents an idea of the flying strength of the navy, and, at the same time, an idea of the devastation which could be caused by the best type of air craft in existence.

While the unit of the airplane fleet was designed as a peace-time gesture, the reaction of the thousands who stood in the street and watched them soar overhead, was one of awe, mingled with admiration.

Air conditions were only fair when the fleet flew overhead, but the small fast scouts, the heavy bombers and even the huge amphibians flew in tight formation with the wings overlapping. They were over the city but a few minutes and then faded into the distance.

Funeral Saturday for Bolt Victim

Lawrence, May 9—Funeral services will be held Saturday morning for Timothy Donovan, 51 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Donovan of 141 Easton st., Lawrence. He was fishing and had taken shelter under a tree when lightning struck the tree, killing him instantly. He was found by companions in the family lot in the Immaculate Conception cemetery.

Donovan was one of the six men struck by the bolt attracted by the wire screen backstop in the park.

'EL' MAY INSTAL LOADING PLATFORMS ON HUNTINGTON AVE. LINE

TRUSTEES IN FAVOR OF PLAN

Elimination of Trolley Car Reservation Asked at Hearing

Loading platforms may be installed between the tracks on the Huntington ave. street car reservation as a result of agitation by Back Bay residents to have the city remove the reservation.

This was revealed by Edward C. Lane, general manager of the Boston Elevated Railway, following a hearing at City Hall by the City Council committee on public utility on a petition of Dr. Edith Arnold councillor from ward 4 calling on the mayor to order the Public Works Department to abolish the reservation or place the tracks nearer the curb.

PLAN SANCTIONED

Manager Lane declared the Elevated had received no notice of the hearing and said that permission had been obtained from the trustees to experiment with a loading platform.

In doing the loading platforms would require taking up the tracks and should the reservation be removed the underground would be much nearer the surface.

Opposition to the proposal was voiced by Dr. Arnold, who declared the elimination of the reservation would reduce the width of Huntington ave. to the prejudice of the residents.

12 KILLED IN YEAR

The petition for removal of the reservation was signed by residents of Back Bay, who declared that there were 12 fatalities on the avenue during the past year. Attorney Edward F. Mahoney, representing the petitioners, declared that the reservation was a menace to life and limb and should be removed.

Attorney Walter J. Kenney, representing the Boston & Maine Railroad, which has a station on the avenue, declared that the removal of the reservation would be prejudicial to the interests of the railroad.

PENSION BILL ASSAILED IN HOUSE

Minimum Age Increase in Public Aid Measure Denounced

Condemnation of the "public assistance" bill to aid worthy citizens above the age of 70 who have been residents of the State for at least 20 years prior to reaching that age featured debate in the House.

Substitution of the Thore bill establishing a non-contributory old-age pension system for women above 65 was moved by Rep. Bernard Ginsburg of Boston.

VOTE MONDAY

Under an agreement, voting on the bill will take place Monday.

Rep. Thomas Smith, Jr., of Fall River, contended that the "assistance" bill would be of the advantage to the public welfare department and financed by extra taxation as a levy on amusements, proprietary articles and luxuries, provides no aid that can not be extended now under present law by the city and town welfare departments.

Ginsburg charged that the bill was brought in to "throw dust in the eyes of the public."

HITS AGE LIMIT

Rep. John Halewell of New Bedford, asked why a 70-year limit was put on when the public welfare fund, established in 1928, set the age at 65.

"By no stretch of the imagination can this 'assistance' bill be called an old-age pension bill," he said.

The "assistance" bill received the support of Reps. Mahoney and Ludwig of Boston, Cronin of Cambridge and Kelley of Worcester, the latter pointing out that it was endorsed by the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

THORE ASSAILED

Rep. Mahoney attacked the non-contributory bill and its author, Wendell P. Thore of Quincam.

He declared that Thore was not the author of the non-contributory bill but had headed it up while denouncing others as glory seekers.

Mahoney claimed that under the Thore measure an applicant would be paid $1 per day.

"It is bills like this that have destroyed the chances for a real old age pension bill," he declared.

MR. BOSTON by JACK CONWAY

Jackie Fields Risks Welterweight Crown

MR. BOSTON started the ball rolling on the Tuesday night welterweight championship bout between Jackie Fields and Young Jack Thompson when he frowned into the sports department today.

"Jack Kearns and Frank MacDonald of the Hearst Detroit Times asked me to hop out to Detroit to see Fields and Thompson in action tonight," said Mr. Boston.

Kearns suggested that I use an airplane. Nowadays when Jack wants to hop down to Texas or take a trip to Chicago he always uses an enclosed car.

Frank MacDonald tells me Detroit is all steamed up over the match. Referee Slim McClellan has gone on record to the effect there will not be a draw decision. He will hand the duke to either Fields or Thompson. As the distance is 15 rounds, the result should be decisive.

"Both Hank Kearns and Mac Donald inform me Detroit and the entire mid West is very much stepped up over the 15-round world's heavyweight championship battle between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling which will be staged at the Yankee stadium New York, June 12.

"MacDonald, who is the best writer, is one of the few sport writers who named Sharkey to beat Stribling, Loughran or Scott.

"Incidentally, Kearns tells me business is beginning to pick up in Detroit. The circulation of the Detroit Times has increased from 225,000 to over 300,000 during the past month."

Jack Conway

Red Sox at Last Show Winning Punch

MR. BOSTON colluded with Cy Murphy who is a master-mind among golf [illegible]

"I find that the Red Sox have helped restore baseball interest in this man's town," said Cy. "The sensational batting of Tom Oliver has put new life into the game here.

"They say of Babe Ruth, 'As Ruth goes, so go the Yanks.' When the Bambino's batting, the ball park is packed to the rafters. The players become inspired and do the impossible on the ball field.

"This youngster Oliver batting safely in 17 consecutive games has added fire to the Red Sox attack. Needless to say, Manager Paul Irvin herself would down with the flu, but he didn't let up on the pep and boosting. The winning spirit of Oliver has become contagious.

"I find it very interesting, also, to Iris Speaker's efforts. Red Sox fans, I feel, the Sox keep winning and Boston will boast a championship team once more. And Jack Quinn will forget all about some of the terrible years he has had with his ball club.

Eddie Cutley Finds Little Gold on West Coast

"Eddie finds that the big gold rush to the Coast has not been very beneficial to Mr. Boston.

The boxing game is in poor shape in California. Cutley has boxed some on the Coast but didn't get enough money for his services to pay his railroad fare.

"Jim Maloney's bout with Armand Emmel was a honey. If when Pa Emmel crossed trips Shamus O'Brien for his scalp. Now Jim is waiting for his shot at Paulino on June 13. Harvey Flanagan and Ike Paulino have appeared in Coast rings, but the remuneration was small.

"The boxers are all toiling together and Tom Kerby is the big chief.

"Frank Dane who was formerly matchmaker of the Commonwealth A. C., is in town with Harry Tierro, Brockton bantamweight. Tierro is a club fighter and is ready to tackle any of the local boys of his weight.

"I hear that Jack McCarthy of Roxbury, amateur heavyweight star, has got under the management of Johnny Buckley. He will hop off to Orangeburg, N. Y., next week.

Six Teams in Newly-Formed Hub Twilight League

SOMERVILLE CUBS NINE A MEMBER

A new Hub Twilight League was formed last night when Doc Mooney, former president of the Boston Twilight League which he organized nine years ago, called a meeting of the managers of many prominent young ball clubs.

A new circuit was launched that is expected to be a stepping stone for the baseball aspirants who do not get recognition that will further their advancement toward the big leagues.

Included in the new loop will be Doherty, managed by Jack Doherty; Somerville Cubs, managed by Jack Sullivan; Somerville A. A., managed by Walter Brown; Boston Post, managed by Jack Dineen and a club still to be named, managed by Tim Mahoney, former manager of the Dorchester and later the Lovell teams in Mooney and Dugan.

The schedule will start around May 30 and the season will be divided in two halves with the championship playoff around Labor Day.

The idea of the new circuit is to give more young college and high school baseball players as well as semi-pro players who have been unable to break into organized baseball an opportunity to play in a progressive fashion which may lead to bigger and better things.

It is also expected to be a stepping stone to baseball in Great Boston

ROOKIE BIG FACTOR IN 3-1 WIN

OLIVER'S STANCE UNUSUAL---BUT SO ARE HITS

Staff Photos

Tom Oliver, great Sox rookie, has one of the most unusual stances ever seen in the big leagues as these stiff shots show. While waiting for the ball to be delivered, he keeps his right foot nearer to the plate than his left, which is just the opposite to how all the other right-handers stand, and he holds his bat as far away from his body as possible and still be able to reach the ball. Then, as he makes ready to swing, he moves his left foot forward, pivots on it and the fielders duck. He doesn't look like a hitter and veteran ball players say he should be a right field hitter and not a very good one, but he hits to all fields and more consistently than has any other player in the league to date.

Sharkey Begins to Learn

HUB SAILOR TELLS OF WEINERT BOUTS

American Champion Recalls First Meeting With Wills and Godfrey; Defeated Both Later

By JACK SHARKEY
American Heavyweight Champion

Charley Weinert, veteran of many a hard-fought ring battle, stepped back into the fistic limelight in the fall of 1924 when he gave Louis Firpo a boxing lesson at Newark.

In December of 1924 I received an offer for a tussle with Wienert at Newark. Johnny Buckley immediately accepted it.

Buckley told me later that he figured Weinert would outpoint me, but he felt I would gain the kind of experience necessary if one is to reach the top rung of the boxing ladder.

I went to Newark a week before my contest with Weinert. The night I arrived there a boxing show was being staged which I attended so that I would be present when my bout with Weinert was announced from the ring.

JACK MEETS GIANTS

As I climbed through the ropes of the ring two of the biggest men I ever gazed upon were waiting to be introduced. They were Harry Wills, at the time the foremost challenger of Jack Dempsey and George Godfrey, "The Leiperville Tiger." Wills weighed around 212 pounds, while Godfrey scaled close to 226 pounds.

The burly Negro heavyweights parted as I got into the ring and I stood between them. I felt as though I were only a lightweight as I gazed at the two giants.

I was young and impressionable and considered Wills and Godfrey lions of the ring. When I got back to my seat I said to Johnny Buckley:

"What big birds Wills and Godfrey are. I hope you don't get an idea I can beat human mountains like them."

Little did I imagine at the time that less than two years later I would hand Godfrey and Wills crushing defeats within a period of three weeks.

WEINERT BATTLE

The following week I went into action with Weinert as my opponent. Buckley was right when he said I would profit from the experience I would gain fighting Weinert.

What a battle it was! Naturally, everybody expected that Weinert, fresh from his conquest of Firpo, would not have any difficulty in defeating me. For the first part of the bout it looked as though the fans had the correct dope.

Few boxers use a left hand as effectively as Weinert did at that time. He also scores with his left differently from most boxers.

Instead of holding his left hand out, Weinert keeps it dangling at his side. As I would rush in, I could not tell just where Charley's left was going to land. It would seem to come from nowhere and crash against my nose or chin.

For five rounds Weinert's left hand seemed to be continually in my face. I could not get away from it. It was enough to discourage a youngster.

In this case, I got more determined as Weinert kept socking away with his left. In the sixth round, I partly solved his style of attack and would catch his left on my own right arm as I smashed forward. I would then rip my own left to the head and body.

Weinert tired under the terrific pace I set during the last six rounds.

By the ninth frame I had Charley in distress and carried the last three by healthy margins.

However, most of the newspapers gave Weinert the decision.

JACK TOOK LICKING

I'm frank in stating I took a shellacking during those first five rounds, but when I came through during the closing sessions I realized I was improving as a boxer.

I think it also did me good to box away from home. The trouble with the development of many boxers is that they show too often in their home towns. They fail to acquire the same confidence in their ability which they gain from campaigning around the country before strange crowds.

A month later I appeared at the New Manhattan Club in New York with Jack DeMave as an opponent. DeMave at the time was a fast, clever youth.

I was too fast and clever for DeMave and won the decision after 10 rounds of battling, knocking DeMave down nine times.

My good showing against Weinert and my victory over DeMave caused my stock to boom again in Boston. The promoters offered me a bout with Sully Montgomery, former Centre College football player, who was punching his way to fame in the ring.

WEINERT WINS IN HUB

Frank Churchill, who piloted the late Pancho Villa to the world's flyweight championship, was managing Montgomery at the time. He would not sign for the bout until after he saw me battle DeMave. Although I won over DeMave, Churchill did not believe I classed with Montgomery.

"I'll take Sharkey for Montgomery," Churchill told Buckley in my dressing room after the DeMave battle.

I hurried back to Boston and resumed training. On the strength of his knockout of Battling McCreary, Montgomery entered the ring a favorite.

We had not been boxing a minute when I discovered a weakness in Montgomery which enabled me to hand him a decisive defeat.

Sully has to come straight at an opponent. He is not good at sidestepping, while he also is obliged to get set before he can deliver a punch.

I soon had Sully missing. Bobbing and weaving, I kept Montgomery off balance most of the time, and hit him almost at will. Incidentally, I also counted with four knockdowns. I won the decision by a wide margin.

In my second battle with Weinert I was not bothered a great deal by his left hand attack. I kept driving in close and made it difficult for Charley to score with his tantalizing blow.

The bout was about even going into the ninth round. Both of us then spurted and fought desperately during the last two frames to gain the decision.

The award went to Weinert. It must have been a fairly close fight as the decision was booed by the crowd. Maybe Weinert did have the edge.

BECAME POPULAR

It did not really matter as I came out of the bout popular with the crowd and convinced of my own ability to go out and battle the headliners on even terms.

In the spring of 1925 Harry Wills announced he would battle in a big outdoor show in New York which Humbert J. Fugazy was going to stage for the Italian Hospital Fund.

It was finally virtually agreed that Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, should be Wills' opponent. Renault was to get $25,000 for the match.

In April, 1925, Leo Flynn, Renault's manager, was offered a bout for Renault with me in Boston. Leo had never seen me box and figured I was merely an inexperienced youngster who would be easy picking for the crafty and hard-hitting Renault.

Flynn was of the opinion that Renault's bout with me would put him in razor edge condition for his proposed meeting with Wills.

"When my contest with Renault was announced, many of my Boston friends told me it was a poor match. They stated Renault punched too hard for a boxer with my limited experience.

"They have got to hit you to hurt," I laughingly told my well-wishers and got down to the serious task of training.

The Renault bout was the most important test up to this point of my career and I determined to make the most of my opportunity. I was eager to win.

I realized Renault had a great reputation as a fighter, but I knew that reputation alone would not stop me.

(In tomorrow's article Sharkey tells of his thrilling victory over Jack Renault.)

SMILES AT FATE

Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, who meets Max Schmeling for the world title on June 12, has a happy faculty of smiling at whatever Fate hands out to him. In today's chapter of his life story, Jack tells of the days when smiling was rather a difficult thing for him to do.

PIANO TWINS seem to be gaining popularity with air audiences. Tonight no less than three piano duos appear in national programs heard locally. The first to be heard are Muriel Pollock and Vee Lawnhurst in the Cloverdale Limelights, on WBZA at 6:15. They play "Flapperette, "Novelette" and a medley from "Show Boat." Next come an unnamed pair in the Green and White program on Columbia stations at 10, playing the intricate and ever popular "Maple Leaf Rag." Finally, the hardy perennials, Ohman and Arden, in the Raleigh Review on stations of the N. B. C. Red Network at 10:30. They will play "You've Got That Thing," from "Fifty Million Frenchmen."

PLANS for the Boston Rose Day drive tomorrow will be announced in a special half-hour broadcast over WNAC at 8 o'clock tonight. Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and Henry Parkman, Jr., will tell of the work being carried on by the Soldiers and Sailors Club at 8 Fayette st., on whose behalf the annual Rose Day sale is conducted. A band from Charlestown Navy Yard will supply a program of music, with solo numbers by Elsie Chamberlain, Boston soprano.

Elsie Chamberlain

BY WAY OF maintaining the martial spirit, WNAC continues at 8:30 with a Columbia broadcast of the U. S. Army Band at Washington, under the direction of William J. Stannard. The concert takes place in the Army War College.

A VARIATION from the all-prevailing Stein Song finds a place for itself in the Interwoven program on WBZA at 9 o'clock. It is "The Mug Song," and it will call for combined vocalizing by Billy Jones and Ernie Hare.

AT A QUICK calculation I can figure up at least five good male quartets which can be heard at one time or another tonight. No, I'm wrong. There are six, and they offer plenty of variety. First come the Cities Service Cavaliers at 8 on the NBC Red network. Next, at 9.30, the Old Company Singers on the same group of stations. Ten o'clock brings a conflict, with Armstrong Quakers on the NBC Blue network, and the Quaker State Four in the Green and White hour on Columbia stations. Another conflict comes with the simultaneous broadcasting of the Gold Medal Wheaties on Columbia stations and the Raleigh Rovers on the Red Chain at 10:30. It would be interesting to check up on all six, and see which foursome rings the bell most ringingly.

LET'S SEE how these six quartets stack up in their several program offerings: The Cavaliers sing "Sing, You Sinners," from "Honey," and "The Japanese Sandman." The Old Company Singers do "Now Is the Month of Maying," "Ole Uncle Moon," "In Maytime," travesty on "Comin' Thro' the Rye," and "Good Night, Beloved," Armstrong Quakers sing "The Big Bass Viol," and "Bedouin Love Song." Quaker State Four are heard in "Should I?" and "Truthful Parson Brown." The Wheaties sing "Whippoorwill," "Shine On, Harvest Moon," and a yodelling song. The Rovers break out with "Singing a Vagabond Song," and "Just Around the Corner."

OH-GOSH-OH-GEE-OH-GOSH! Here's still another four-in-hand in the Kodak Week-End party on WBZA and sister stations at 10.30. Jack Parker, Frank Luther, Phil Dewey and James Stanley sing "The Talk of the Town," and "Deep River." Some day I'll get all these quartet boys catalogued on a sheet of paper and distributed in their proper places among the Ramblers, Rovers, Rollickers, Revellers, Radiators, Riveters, Rapturizers, Hatters, Refrigerators, and what not.

Oliver Helps Red Sox Take Series From Chicago

ROOKIE BIG FACTOR IN 3-1 WIN

By JOE CASHMAN

With Jack Russell pitching gilt-edge ball and Tom Oliver hitting and fielding like nobody's business, the Red Sox won the third and deciding game of their series with the Chicago White Sox by a score of 3 to 1.

Russell was immense in turning in his third victory in four starts this season, holding the enemy to six scattered hits and doing his bit with the stick.

But it was Oliver who really took the honors for the afternoon. Just as he does every day.

Alphonse Thomas was the victim on this occasion. He has long been poison to the natives and Manager Donie Bush was confident that he would stop the Little Rock rebel.

Joe Cashman

He did halt him the first time up and the last, but in between Tom came up twice and made two hits to run the total of consecutive games in which he has hit safely to 37.

And one of these hits, coming with two on and two out in the fourth, scored both runners and gave the Wagners their margin of victory.

Charlie Berry Hits Homer, Double, Single

Following Oliver's example, all the other Sox hit Thomas freely; several a lot harder than the sensational rookie. Still, none of them were able to come through with run-making bingles except Charlie Berry who made the Sox third run by knocking a homer over the clock in addition to a double and a single in four times up.

In the field, Oliver was even a greater help than at the bat, for he prevented the visitors tieing the score and probably taking the lead and knocking Russell out, by two of the best catches ever made in the park.

The first was at the expense of Bill Cissell in the second inning with the score tied 0 to 0. Thomas was on second base and there were two down when the White City keystone guardian hit a liner over second base which never rose higher than two feet off the ground and which looked like the cleanest hit ever made.

Tom, supposed to be a bit weak at coming in for balls, tore in from deep center, made a head-long dive into the turf and came up with the apple.

That looked like the greatest catch it was possible for a human being to make, but in the eighth he made an even greater one.

Sneed Jolley, greatest of the Chicago hitters, was the victim. The coast slugger had been robbed by Oliver the day before and he determined to drive one past him this time.

Oliver Makes Wonderful Catch in Eighth

He did. The ball went on a line to right center, nearer Dural, who was making his debut as a Sox, in right. It looked like a 100-1 bet that neither the newcomer or Oliver would get even close to the ball.

But the "little rebel" started at the crack of the bat, fled with the wind and while on the dead run stretched out to the limit and clutched the apple just as it was about to hit the fence.

The Sox had a runner on base every inning, and two of them in most, collecting 13 hits, but only when Oliver singled after Rhyne and Russell had done the same, in the fourth, and Berry put a ball out of the park, could they score.

Two runs were all they needed, however, for Russell, who experience had the enemy all at sea, and he was scored on only in the sixth, the only frame in which he allowed more than one hit.

Cissell and Shires found him for singles in that frame, and Cissell scored as Jolley was forcing "Whataman."

OLIVER'S STANCE UNUSUAL---BUT SO ARE HITS

Tom Oliver, great Sox rookie, has one of the most unusual stances ever seen in the big leagues as these staff photos show. While waiting for the ball to be delivered, he keeps his right foot nearer to the plate than his left, which is just the opposite to the way all the other right-handers stand, and he holds his bat as far away from his body as possible and away back. Then, as he makes ready to swing, he moves his left foot forward, pivots on it and the fielders duck. He doesn't look like like a hitter and veteran ball players say he should be a right field hitter and not a very good one, but he hits to all fields and more consistently than has any other player in the league to date.

BRAVES OPEN WITH CARDS

St. Louis, Mo., May 9—The Boston Braves, fighting mad after losing three out of four games to the lowly Cincinnati Reds, make their initial bow of the season here this afternoon, when they open a four-game series with the Cards.

The Tribe is now managed by Bill McKechnie, who led the natives to a pennant in 1928. The pilot is still very popular here and large crowds are expected to turn out to see his new charges in action.

Local fans, hope, however, that he don't tear them like he did in friends in Pittsburgh. The Pirates were flying high, wide and handsome until the Braves landed in the Smokey City and won twice in three starts.

In the final game with the Howleymen, they outhit the enemy 6 to 5 but lost out 2 to 1. They scored a run off Eppa Rixey in the second inning and that looked mighty big even though they couldn't count again until the eighth when the home boys fell on Bruce Cunningham for a pair of markers to clinch the verdict.

Maine Frosh Beat Kents Hill, 11-9

Kents Hill, Me., May 9—Kents Hill's late rally fell short by two runs when it was beaten out by the Maine freshmen, 11 to 9. The bases were filled in the last of the ninth when Wiseman grounded out to second and ended the game.

GALLANT FOX PREAKNESS FAVORITE

Pimlico, May 9 (US)—For the first time in its history, or since 1873, Kentucky and the West this year ignores the Preakness classic which has simmered down to a skirmish between seven Eastern owners, the Sesgrams of Canada and J. L. Pontius of Detroit with only 11 horses carded to start.

Of the field there is no question about William Woodward's three-year-old colt, Gallant Fox being the class of his seven pay races in his eight starts. Earl Sande will ride him, and ought to win. In his only start this year, he beat a faster field in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica last month than will compete in the Preakness.

According to the law of averages the favorite should win—Gallant Fox will be a decided choice.

In Preakness history 2 to 1 favorites have always scored in a row. Last year when Dr. Freeland won for Walter J. Salmon he was the first choice to make good in nine years or since Man O' War won his Preakness in 1920.

And if Gallant Fox registers today he would be the second favorite in a row to win the Preakness since 1918, 1919, 1920 and 1921 when four favorites in a row were victorious—Jack Hare, Jr., at $3.80, Sir Barton as $4.80, Man O' War at $2.60, and Broomspun at $4.00. The next year, 1922, Pillory won at $24.30 and long shots have captured the prize for the last eight years.

Science solves the riddle of the Sphinx. The article in next Sunday's American Weekly, with the Boston Sunday Advertiser, reveals how long ago this huge idol was built.

Sharkey Begins to Learn

HUB SAILOR TELLS OF WEINERT BOUTS

'American Champion Recalls First Meeting With Wills and Godfrey; Defeated Both Later

By JACK SHARKEY
American Heavyweight Champion

Charley Weinert, veteran of many a hard-fought ring battle, stepped back into the fistic limelight in the fall of 1924 when he gave Louis Firpo a boxing lesson at Newark.

In December of 1924 I received an offer for a tussle with Weinert at Newark. Johnny Buckley immediately accepted it.

Buckley told me later that he figured Weinert would outpoint me, but he felt I would gain the kind of experience necessary if one is to reach the top rung of the boxing ladder.

I went to Newark a week before my contest with Weinert. The night I arrived there a boxing show was being staged which I attended so that I would be present when my bout with Weinert was announced from the ring.

JACK MEETS GIANTS

As I climbed through the ropes of the ring two of the biggest men I ever gazed upon were waiting to be introduced. They were Harry Wills, at the time the foremost challenger of Jack Dempsey and George Godfrey, "The Leiperville Tiger." Wills weighed around 212 pounds, while Godfrey scaled close to 225 pounds.

The burly Negro heavyweights parted as I got into the ring and I stood between them. I felt as though I were only a lightweight as I gazed at the two giants.

I was young and impressionable and considered Wills and Godfrey lions of the ring. When I got back to my seat I said to Johnny Buckley:

"What big birds Wills and Godfrey are. I hope you don't get an idea I can beat human mountains like them."

Little did I imagine at the time that less than two years later I would hand Godfrey and Wills crushing defeats within a period of three weeks.

WEINERT BATTLE

The following week I went into action with Weinert in my opponent. Buckley was right when he said I would profit from the experience I would get in fighting Weinert.

What a battle it was! Naturally, everybody expected that Weinert, fresh from his conquest of Firpo, would not have any difficulty in defeating me. For the first part of the bout it looked as though the fans had the correct dope.

Few boxers use a left hand as effectively as Weinert did at that time. He also scores with his left differently from most boxers.

Instead of holding his left hand out, Weinert keeps it dangling at his side. As I would rush in, I could not tell just where Charley's left was going to land. It would seem to come from nowhere and crash against my nose or chin.

For five rounds Weinert's left hand seemed to be continually in my face. I could not get away from it. It was enough to discourage a youngster.

In this case, I got more determined as Weinert kept socking away with his left. In the sixth round, I partly solved his style of attack and would catch his left on my own right arm as I smashed forward. I would then rip my own left to the head and body.

Weinert tired under the terrific pace I set during the last six rounds.

By the ninth frame I had Charley in distress and carried the last three by healthy margins.

However, most of the newspapers gave Weinert the decision.

JACK TOOK LICKING

I'm frank in stating I took a shellacking during those first five rounds, but when I came through during the closing sessions I realized I was improving as a boxer.

I think it also did me good to box away from home. The trouble with the development of many boxers is that they show too often in their home towns. They fail to acquire the same confidence in their ability which they gain from campaigning around the country before strange crowds.

A month later I appeared at the New Manhattan Club in New York with Jack DeMave as an opponent. DeMave at the time was a fast, clever youth.

I was too fast and clever for DeMave and won the decision after 10 rounds of battling, knocking DeMave down nine times.

My good showing against Weinert and my victory over DeMave caused my stock to boom again in Boston. The promoters offered me a bout with Sully Montgomery, former Centre College football player, who was punching his way to fame in the ring.

WEINERT WINS IN HUB

Frank Churchill, who piloted the late Pancho Villa to the world's flyweight championship, was managing Montgomery at the time. He would not sign for the bout until after he saw me battle DeMave. Although I won over DeMave, Churchill did not believe I classed with Montgomery.

"I'll take Sharkey for Montgomery," Churchill told Buckley in my dressing room after the DeMave battle.

I hurried back to Boston and resumed training. On the strength of his knockout of Battling Mc-Creary, Montgomery entered the ring a favorite.

We had not been boxing a minute when I discovered a weakness in Montgomery which enabled me to hand him a decisive defeat.

Sully has to come straight at an opponent. He is not good at sidestepping, while he also is obliged to get set before he can deliver a punch.

I soon had Sully missing. Bobbing and weaving, I kept Montgomery off balance most of the time, and hit him almost at will. Incidentally, I also counted with four knockdowns. I won the decision by a wide margin.

My next bout with Weinert I was not hothered a great deal by his left hand attack. I kept driving in close and made it difficult for Charley to score with his tantalizing blow.

The bout was about even going into the ninth round. Both of us then spurted and fought desperately during the last two frames to gain the decision.

The award went to Weinert. It must have been a fairly close fight as the decision was booed by the crowd. Maybe Weinert did have the edge.

BECAME POPULAR

It did not really matter as I came out of the bout popular with the crowd and convinced of my own ability to go out and battle the headliners on even terms.

In the spring of 1925 Harry Wills announced he would battle in a big outdoor show in New York which Humbert J. Fugazy was going to stage for the Italian Hospital Fund.

It was finally virtually agreed that Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, should be Wills' opponent. Renault was to get $25,000 for the match.

In April, 1925, Leo Flynn, Renault's manager, was offered a bout for Renault with me in Boston. Leo had never seen me box and figured I was merely an inexperienced youngster who would be easy picking for the crafty and hard-hitting Renault.

Flynn was of the opinion that Renault's bout with me would put him in razor edge condition for the proposed battle with Wills.

"When my contest with Renault was announced, many of my Boston friends told me it was a poor match. They stated Renault punched too hard for a boxer with my limited experience.

"They have got to hit you to hurt," I laughingly told my well-wishers and got down to the serious task of training.

The Renault bout was the most important test up to this point of my career and I determined to make the most of my opportunity. I was eager to win.

I realized Renault had a great reputation as a fighter, but I knew that reputation alone would not stop me.

(In tomorrow's article Sharkey tells of his thrilling victory over Jack Renault.)

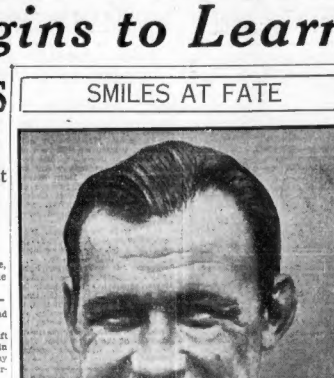
SMILES AT FATE



Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, who meets Max Schmeling for the world title on June 12, has a happy faculty of smiling at whatever Fate hands out to him. In today's chapter of his life story, Jack tells of the days when smiling was rather a difficult thing for him to do.

PLANS for the Boston Rose Day drive tomorrow will be announced in a special half-hour broadcast over WNAC at 8 o'clock tonight. Mayor John F Fitzgerald and Henry Parkman, Jr., will tell of the work being carried on by the Soldiers and Sailors Club at 8 Fayette st., on whose behalf the annual Rose Day sale is conducted. A band from Charlestown Navy Yard will supply a program of music, with solo numbers by Elsie Chamberlain, Boston soprano.

BY WAY OF maintaining the martial spirit, WNAC continues at 8:30 with a Columbia broadcast of the U. S. Army Band at Washington, under the direction of William J. Stannard. The concert takes place in the Army War College.

A VARIATION from the all-prevailing Stein Song finds a place for itself in the Interwoven program on WBZA at 9 o'clock. It is "The Mug Song," and it will call for combined vocalizing by Billy Jones and Ernie Hare.

AT A QUICK calculation I can figure up at least five good male quartets which can be heard at one time or another tonight. No, I'm wrong. There are six, and they offer plenty of variety. First come the Cities Service Cavaliers at 8 on the NBC Red network. Next at 9.30, the Old Company Singers on the same group of stations. Ten o'clock brings a conflict, with Armstrong Quakers on the NBC blue network, and the Quaker State Four in the Green and White hour on Columbia stations. Another conflict comes with the simultaneous broadcasting of the Gold Medal Wheaties on Columbia stations and the Raleigh Revers on the Red Chain at 10:30. It would be interesting to check up on all six, and see which foursome rings the bell most ringingly.

LET'S SEE how these six quartets stack up in their several program offerings: The Cavaliers sing "Sing, You Sinners," from "Honey," and "The Japanese Sandman." The Old Company Singers do "Now Is the Month of Maying," "Ole Uncle Moon," "In Maytime," travesty on "Comin' Thro' the Rye," and "Good Night, Beloved," Armstrong Quakers sing "The Big Bass Viol," and "Bedouin Love Song." Quaker State Four are heard in "Should We?" and "Truthful Parson Brown." The Wheaties sing "Whippoorwill," "Shine On, Harvest Moon," and a yodelling song. The Revers break out with "Singing a Vagabond Song," and "Just Around the Corner."

OH-GOSH-OH-GEE-OH-GOSH! Here's still another four-in-hand in the Kodak Week-End party on WBZA and sister stations at 10:30. Jack Parker, Frank Luther, Phil Dewey and James Rainey sing "The Talk of the Town," and "Deep River." Some day I'll get all these quartet boys catalogued on a sheet of paper and distributed in their proper places among the Rainbleve, Revere, Rollickers, Revellers, Radiolers, Riveters, Rapturizers, Hatters, Refrigerators, and what not.

At the Radio Dial

PIANO TWINS seem to be gaining popularity with air audiences. Tonight no less than three piano duos appear in national programs heard locally. The first to be heard are Muriel Pollock and Vee Lawhurst in the Cloverdale Limelights, on WBZA at 6:15. They play "Flapperette, "Novelette" and a medley from "Show Boat." Next come an unnamed pair in the Green and White program on Columbia stations at 10, playing the intricate and ever popular "Maple Leaf Rag." Finally, the hardy perennials, Ohman and Arden, in the Raleigh Review on stations of the N. B. C. Red network at 10:30. They will play "You've Got That Thing," from "Fifty Million Frenchmen."

M-G-M TO PRODUCE MOLIVAR'S 'OLYMPIA' WITH ALL STAR FRENCH CAST

TEST MADE FOR BILLIE BURKE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Copyright, 1933, Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, May 5— No wonder all the girls are studying French in Hollywood and the boys are taking private lessons in Spanish. There will soon be as many foreign companies on the lots as there are American. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has just decided to produce "Olympia," Molnar's stage play, with an all-star cast. Jacques Feyder, French director, will direct and Andre Luguet and Tania Fedor, Comedie Francaise actress, will have the leads.

If you think there won't be plenty of chattering in French on that set with the importing of Nora Gregor, star with Max Reinhardt, Marcel Andre of the Theatre Gymnase in Paris, and Andrew Berley, comedian from the French stage, you are mistaken. Wonder if M. G. M. will later do an English adaptation of the Molnar play? A German version will follow the French one.

Lonella Parsons

It is interesting to know that there is enough of a French, German and Spanish population in America to make it practical for the companies to release three pictures made in foreign tongues in some of the theaters in the larger American cities.

BILLIE BURKE, who looks remarkably young to be the mother of a nine-year-old daughter and for having been married 16 years, has just had a test made at the Paramount studios. Paramount has invited Miss Burke to play the lead in "Dancing Mothers," but nothing definite has been decided beyond the test. If it is satisfactory Miss Burke may consent to take the part. And if she doesn't like the test she will probably refuse it. She is here for the summer with her husband, Florenz Ziegfeld, and had no intention of working until Paramount made her the offer. She was with this company some years ago.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Arthur Richman patronizing the Resistance League. The waitresses, many of Hollywood's best known actresses and directors' wives, vying with each other to serve him. Janet Gaynor, Alice Day, Marshall Neilan, Arthur Lake and Polly Ann Young among those present at the Coconut Grove. Mrs. Wells Root lunching at the Embassy with Evelyn Brent. Dorothy Herzog learning French and becoming a nuisance to her friends by practising on them. Tedda Hopper leaving for New York on a vacation, promising to fly back if they need her. Master Jimmy Keaton sick at home with the measles, demanding entertainment from his dad, Buster Keaton and his mother, Natalie Talmadge Keaton. Many of Rudolph Valentino's old friends at the unveiling of the monument to his memory in Hollywood. George Fitzmaurice and Dana Gaking some of their friends to a performance of "The Bad One," his latest picture. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

SPLENDID ACTING MARKS 'THE TEXAN' AT METROPOLITAN

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

WOULD THAT SIDNEY PORTER were alive! Could he have lived but a generation in the rear of his day and age, he would be richer and Hollywood the better. For "O. Henry" had the knack of story-writing, and certainly what the American movies need nowadays is story matter. What we usually get these jazzy times is quite piffley; so when a producer harks back to the master of short tale composition of the good old U. S. A., in recent years, we are glad to record the fact that an interesting product is turned out by the film factories. Hence we see "The Texan" at the Metropolitan, and even though much changed, recognize it as Mr. Porter's "A Double-Dyed Deceiver." Which means that there is a refreshing and invigorating narrative to be screened.

"O. Henry" wrote better stories than this, yet it is far and away above the ordinary picture scenario that comes from the studios. The unfortunate facts are, that, the dialogue is below the author's standard, and that Director John Cromwell has not measured up to the need for fidelity and resulting excellence in making this photoplay. However, enough is left to put "The Texan" in the class of being at least an entertaining screen output. We will not rehearse the plot; take down your "O. Henry" from the bookshelf and read this story again. You will get a real "kick" out of the perusal. It is sufficient to say that it deals with the fortunes of an American youth, known as the "Llano Kid," a murderer, who goes in for more crime and discovers there is something worth while in mother love —and, yes, the affection of the captivating Fay Wray.

* * *

THE PHOTOGRAPHY is excellent, but the direction of John Cromwell is but mediocre. Here was a "swell" chance to step on the gas for action, and speedy action at times; to drive the brain along at a peppy pace. Instead, at intervals, we are held back; the cameras linger and loiter when they ought to be going like a house afire. Yet we are glad to record the fact that an old author proves a mine, and our hope is that more and more of the "O. Henry" stuff will be filmed, but with more attention to motion picture values.

* * *

THE ACTING average is good, indeed. Gary Cooper reminds us of his work in "Seven Days Leave." In "The Texan" Sheryl Mercer is not the actress in the mother role. She surpassed the star in "The World War" film; as you will recall; Emma Dunn, the mother in "The Texan," while satisfactory, is under the Mercer mark. We do not recall having seen Miss Wray do as well as here; she does something more than merely look sweet.

* * *

SOLEDAD JIMENEZ, whom we have seen in two or three films, wasn't she in "The Cock-Eyed World"?—is splendid as the duenna. Out of her riding the burro she gets a great deal of wholesome comedy. Oscar Apfel is convincing as the villain, and James Marcus is good as the sheriff.

* * *

ON STAGE, Boris Petroff's "The Blue Mill" is the big feature, starring Ray Bolger, Emily and Romaine, Helen MacFarland, Bros Sisters and the Evans Girls. Miss Ann Leaf, a newcomer, and Arthur Martel preside at the dual console, and Mr. Geissler leads the orchestra through "Kisses."

CIRCUS STARS TOP AERIAL WORLD

Stars that really shine add to the many thrills that come in watching the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus. Among these are Lillian Leitzel, her husband, Alfredo Codona, Rosie Rieffenbach, and a score or more of others, together with features which truly make this the greatest circus ever.

When Miss Leitzel and Mr. Codona were boy and girl sweethearts in Europe neither suspected that one day each would be recognized at the very head of the aerial profession. Truly a royal pair of the circus are these and their every thought aside from their work is for one another.

"The Biggest and Best Show on Earth" is now to be seen twice daily at Boston Garden. However, it's engagement in this city ends tomorrow with the Saturday evening performance.

When dainty Miss Leitzel is out performing such aerial feats as no one else ever has even attempted, when she is poised high above the heads of the audience, her husband is at the base of the aerial rigging watching every move.

And when in turn he mounts to his lofty trapeze to swing through the air in reckless abandon, to turn a triple somersault, out of sight of the audience but with eyes glued up to his every turn and twist, Miss Leitzel stands to lend encouragement and to applaud more sincerely than does even the most enthusiastic admirer "out front."

They are a wondeful couple. They are king and queen of the air. No other aerialists like these have ever been seen. It is doubtful wether in many years their equal will be found. And both are seen at every performance of the circus.

JOAN COLBURN IN 'DRACULA'

Miss Joan Colburn, leading woman in Horace Liveright's mystery play, "Dracula," at the Hollis for a limited engagement beginning next Monday, was a famous actress in England before coming to America. Having obtained her early training in the repertory companies of her native land, Miss Colburn declares that while it may or may not sometimes make it a little easier, no player of any real note or standing ever attained full height of success without hard work and constant application. She declares that her work practically fills all her time.

Joan Colburn

The player with real aims and ambitions is engaged in a constant study and effort in striving for improvement, for, in the opinion of Miss Joan, the greatest one's ability, the less one ever rests satisfied. A continual improvement should be noted in the playing of a character, according to Miss Colburn.

NEW MANAGER FOR PATHE EXCHANGE

The Pathe Exchange, Inc., today announce the retirement of Joseph P. Kennedy of Boston from the active management of the company. Mr. Kennedy will, however, remain as chairman of the board of directors. The operation of the company will be assumed by E. B. Derr, executive vice-president in charge of operations on the West Coast; C. J. Scollard, treasurer, and Phil M. Reisman, general sales manager.

The Gloria Productions, Inc., also announce Mr. Kennedy's retirement from the active management of that company.

During the period of Mr. Kennedy's administration a marked improvement has been made in the Pathe situation. At the time Kennedy entered the situation, it was his intention to develop an adequate personnal to which he could turn over the active management of the corporation. This he feels he has now accomplished.

AUNT JEMIMA KEITH-ALBEE STAR

While the rest of the world may be counting its calories and eliminating everything but grapefruit from its diet, Aunt Jemima, famous blues singer, who will be at the Keith-Albee tomorrow, watches the scales soar higher and higher towards the 300 mark and grins in her inimitable good-natured manner. The popular "Queenie" of Ziegfeld's "Show Boat," whose Aunt Jemima costume, rollicking personality, deep-throated singing and elephantine contours are known practically all over this country, just dotes on double portions of chocolate fudges, ice-cream and cake for dessert, and in between meals, when she "feels a wee bit hungry." Diet? None on your life, is the emphatic answer of the rotund singer.

Aunt Jemima

The fact is, that Aunt Jemima, though she has achieved fame as the southern mammy, is a young Italian woman born in Wilkes Barre, Pa., and reared in New York.
